PUBLISHER'S FOREWORD

PHILIPPINE EDUCATION COMPANY, INC., in presenting to the public the 1941 edition of the Manila City Directory, now in its 38th year, wishes to express its sincere gratitude to the general public, and especially to the business community and government officials, for their cooperation in the work of compiling the publication, during the present year.

On the part of the Publishers, no effort has been or will be spared in the endeavor to make of the Directory not merely a book, but a public service.

As an indication of the service the Directory performs and the need for such a publication because of the constant change in the make-up of the community, it is of interest to note that from the Alphabetical List of Firm Names alone, which comprises some 7,490 entries, over 600 names of corporations, companies, partnerships, professionals, etc., were dropped as having gone out of business, and over 1,000 new entries were made. These figures do not include minor changes such as in staff personnel, addresses, Telephone Numbers, etc.

The total number of names in the Directory are approximately as follows:

Miscellaneous Section (government officials, churches, schools and colleges, hospitals, clubs, etc.), 13,643; Alphabetical List of Firm Names, 7,490, Classified List of Firm Names, 13,017; Agency Section 1,009 names; Resident Section, 23,610, Baguio Section Alphabetical List of Firm Names 412, Classified List of Firm Names 880, Resident Section 769, a total of 60,830 names.

Hosted by Google

The task of compiling the Directory each year may be estimated from the fact that the Publishers employ some twenty canvassers for five or six months, and some ten compilers and proof readers who work the year around. There is not a page in any one edition of the Directory that is the same as the page of the same number in the preceding edition. Not thousands, but hundreds of thousands of changes and corrections are made each year.

All of this effort is aimed at producing a Directory that truly directs. In spite of all this effort, however, errors may have crept in. The publishers would consider it a great favor if such errors were called to their attention.

HOW TO USE THIS DIRECTORY

To get the maximum utility of such a volume as Manila City Directory, it is necessary to know in general just what the book contains. The Directory is divided into six sections, familiarity of which will greatly facilitate finding the desired information.

(1) Miscellaneous Section. This section contains a street directory, a postal and telegraph guide, duties on imports, weights and measures, the commerce of the Philippines, a census section, a directory of United States, Insular, and Other Government Officials, a directory of consular representatives, a directory of boards of trade, clubs, churches and religious societies, hospitals and asylums, schools, colleges, and convents, masonic bodies, etc.

(2) Alphabetical List of Firm Names. This section contains the names of firms and professional persons in Manila arranged alphabetically. The names of the officials and most important employees are printed under each firm name.

(3) Classified List of Firm Names. This section contains firm names and addresses classified under 662 different trade headings, such as "Accountants and Auditors," "Brokers, General," "Dressmakers," "Hemp Dealers," "Machinery Dealers," "Insurance Companies, Fire, " "Engineers, Consulting," "Lawyers", etc.

(4) Agency Section. This section contains the names of firms in U.S.A. and Foreign Countries, arranged Alphabetically with kind of products exported to the Philippines and represented by local firms.

(5) Alphabetical List of Local Residents. This section contains the names of Manila residents, and their occupations and addresses.

(6) Baguio City Directory—This section contains the names of firms and professional persons in Baguio City arranged alphabetically; a Classified section with different trade headings, and Residents Section arranged alphabetically.

In looking for names in the Directory, it should be remembered that names which sound alike vary in spelling, as for instance, Lopez and Llopis, Jimenez and Gimenez, Lacsamana and Laxamana, Valdes and Valdez and Brown and Braun. These examples should show that one is not justified in concluding that a name is omitted because he cannot immediately find it. Names have been arranged alphabetically as they are usually given. Salvador Abad Santos, for instance, will be found under the "A's" because the name is usually given as Abad Santos and not as Santos. Chinese names are not transposed, like names such as White, J. G., but are printed as they are pronounced, such as Dee K. Cheong. If one were to look for this name as Cheong, Dee K., he would not find it.

Economic Review of the Philippine Islands for the Year 1940

By PAUL P. STEINTORF
American Trade Commissioner

GENERAL

The year 1940 was a very difficult period. The European war and increased political tension in the Far East adversely affected all aspects of business activity and made it necessary to effect drastic adjustments in Philippine economy.

During the first quarter, business showed a gradual downward tendency, particularly with respect to the prices of the leading Philippine products, but volume was fairly well maintained and trade with most of the world was affected only moderately by war conditions.

Intensified war in Europe, with the extension of hostilities to many new areas and the closing of the Mediterranean to traffic, accelerated the decline in business during the second quarter and caused a rather severe depression. This tendency continued through July and August, reaching a low point in the latter month.

There was a slow but steady recovery during the last four months of the year, despite increased political tension in the Far East and continued major war operations in Europe. This improvement during the latter part of the year appears to represent a successful adjustment of Philippine economy to war conditions. Possibly, a portion of the recovery may be attributed to a reaction from the too rapid decline during earlier months of the year.

It is believed that the adverse effects of war conditions were minimized to a considerable extent as a result of the Government spending program, particularly with respect to the very large amounts expended for public works. The prosperity of the local mining industry also helped to maintain business at a satisfactory level.

It is believed that the volume of business was remarkably well maintained during the year, despite the prevailing adverse conditions. Information collected from many sources indicates that the total volume for the year was only about 10 percent below 1939, which, however, was not a particularly prosperous year.

Undoubtedly, the most important development during the year was the precipitous decline in the prices of the major Philippine products. This subject is treated in detail in another section of this report.

Combined with the decline in prices of Philippine products, there has been a considerable increase in prices of import commodities owing partly to higher prices in producing countries as a result of war demand and partly to greatly increased transportation charges. The effect has been to create a sort of vicious circle whereby the Philippine consumer has less to pay for commodities which cost more.

In the financial field, the most important development was a considerable decline in Government revenue as a result of adverse economic conditions. Banking conditions also were somewhat less favorable, the liquidity of the banks being affected as a result of a marked increase in loans and a substantial decline in cash on hand. There was a substantial deterioration also in credit conditions, with collections becoming very slow and credits necessarily restricted.

In the agricultural field, conditions were very unfavorable. Philippine buying power was markedly reduced as a result of the unprecedentedly low prices of Philippine products. Also, there was a partial failure in the rice crop, which is the leading agricultural product, while the sugar crop was considerably below normal. Distressed conditions prevailed in a good many agricultural districts, but there were no serious social upheavals.

In the industrial field, there were very few noteworthy developments, expansion being confined in the main to existing industries. The most important developments were in connection with the National Development Company, a Government corporation. There was very considerable expansion in various subsidiary undertakings, the expansion of the textile plant being particularly noteworthy. This plant was operating on a substantial volume basis at the close of the year and was able to supply a very considerable percentage of total domestic requirements for cotton textiles. The foodstuffs factory of the National Development Company also increased its output very materially. Among the new private undertakings, the most important was the erection of a factory in Bais, Oriental Negros, to produce pulp from bagasse.

Internal trade was somewhat unsatisfactory during the greater part of 1940. The extremely low prices of Philippine products and the consequent reduction in buying power curtailed consumption to a very material extent. A large number of dealers suffered from excessive stocks during much of the year and in consequence were forced to sell at sacrifice prices. Although no definite figures are available, it is certain that profits of dealers were very much lower than in the previous year.

The total value of Philippine foreign trade for 1940 was slightly above the previous year. The value of imports increased by 10 percent, but there was a decline of about two percent in exports. In consequence, the excess of exports was about 30 percent below the previous year. The volume of trade during 1940 showed a somewhat different tendency than indicated by the value total, since the cost of imports was substantially higher while export prices were very much lower. Quantitative figures for the leading imports would appear to indicate that the actual volume for the year was slightly below 1939. A similar comparison for exports shows a fairly considerable increase over the preceding year.

The effect of war conditions was clearly evident in trade by countries. Since communications with Europe were cut off or markedly restricted, trade with that area has declined very sharply. In the import field, there was much greater dependence on the United States, which supplied 78 percent of total imports, against 68 percent in the previous year. This is a new high both actually and relatively, the total value of imports from the United States exceeding ₱210,000,000, against a former high of about ₱200,000,000. In the export field, the relative share of the United States was only slightly higher than in 1939, namely, 82 percent against 81 percent, the sharp decline in shipments to Europe being balanced by gains in exports to Oriental countries and miscellaneous areas.

It should be pointed out that the export trade figures include gold, while the comparisons of the import trade between 1939 and 1940 are inexact, since in the latter year imports were reported on the basis of actual arrivals of merchandise whereas in the preceding year they were reported on the basis of liquidations of customs entries.

There was very little economic legislation during 1940. There were no important changes in taxes or in labor laws, the only really important measures being those dealing with the establishment of various enterprises, these laws being treated separately under the commodities affected. There were various modifications of existing tax laws, all of which were quite beneficial to business.

Outlook for 1941.—The existing chaotic world conditions make it impossible to offer any definite predictions concerning the coming year. There are a number of favorable factors in the present situation, including the fact that Philippine economy has been fairly well adjusted to war conditions and the country is in a position to take full advantage of any improvement in world conditions. Another favorable factor is that the very heavy stocks of imported merchandise have been fairly well cleared off and current stocks are approximately normal and in most cases have been bought at very favorable prices. A further favorable factor is that financial conditions are generally sound and satisfactory, the only adverse features being rather excessive bank loans and very slow collections.

The United States national defense program and the consequent increase in general economic activity should favorably affect Philippine economy. Finally, prices of most of the major Philippine products appear to have reached bottom and the future tendency should be upward. The principal unfavorable influences are:

1. Sales to Europe are certain to be very markedly curtailed regardless of war developments.
2. Conditions in nearby Oriental countries are generally disturbed and in consequence the outlook for trade is not encouraging.
3. Export taxes on shipments of various Philippine products to the United States will be imposed beginning January 1, 1941, while United States quotas for several other important commodities will be lowered.
4. A very substantial reduction in Government expenditures would appear to be highly probable.

In view of the foregoing factors, it is possible to suggest that the worst of the war's effects are past and that there is some basis for hope that the coming year will witness a measure of recovery. However, this assumes that there will be no extension of warfare and that the United States will remain neutral.

PRICE TREND

War conditions had a very unfavorable effect on prices of the major Philippine products during 1940. The downward trend in prices which commenced in November 1939 continued steadily throughout the month of August 1940. The principal causes for the decline were:

1. War dislocation and consequent shutting off of many important markets.
2. A very marked increase in shipping and other transportation costs. All of these added transportation costs came out of the local prices of Philippine export commodities, since prices in foreign consuming centers did not advance.
3. Various price control measures which were adopted by belligerent countries.
4. Excessive stocks of competing products in consuming markets.

By the end of August, prices of practically all of the major products were at all-time lows, the general average being some 25 percent below 1939, which was a year of low prices. It would be difficult to overemphasize the effect of these low prices on Philippine economy. Undoubtedly, buying power was so severely reduced that business in practically all lines was very materially restricted. If it had not been for the very substantial Government expenditures for public works and other purposes and the prosperity of the local mining industry, there would probably have been an extremely severe depression.

Prices began to recover in September and continued to gain throughout the remainder of the year. Actual gains, however, were very moderate. An analysis of prices of the seven major Philippine commodities as of December 31, 1940, compared with the same date of the previous year, shows declines in six products ranging from four percent for rice to 37 percent for copra, palay being the only exception and showing a gain of only one percent. A simple average shows a decline of 14 percent for these seven products.

There are no general price indexes published, but this office compiles a simple index of average monthly prices of the four principal Philippine commodities, based on the years 1924-1928 as equal to 100. The average index for these four commodities for 1940 is 40.33, which is a decline of 16.2 percent from 1939 and is 28 percent below the average for the five years 1935 to 1939 inclusive. Details for 1939 and 1940 are given in the following table:

PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM

The extensive public works program of the Commonwealth Government is an important factor in Philippine economy. The program involves substantial expenditures throughout the Islands, a very considerable part of the total being paid as wages. This public works program has helped to minimize distress in rural districts, which otherwise might have been serious owing to the extremely low prices of the leading Philippine agricultural products. Furthermore, these expenditures have contributed rather materially toward the maintenance of general buying power.

A very large part of the public works program has consisted of construction and improvement of roads and bridges, this being the part of the work which is primarily responsible for the maintenance of buying power. In addition, the Commonwealth Government has a very extensive program of building construction which has materially benefited business in Manila and to a somewhat smaller extent in other cities. Certainly, the Government building program has helped very materially to maintain building activity at a high level in the City of Manila during the past year.

Owing to changes in the Government statistical period, statistics covering expenditures are available only for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1940. Total expenditures during that year amounted to ₱52,211,096, of which ₱41,406,471 was spent by the national government and the remainder by provincial and municipal governments. This total undoubtedly represents a new all-time high and compares with total expenditures of ₱18,470,367 during the first six months of 1939 and with ₱36,606,148 during the calendar year 1938. The following table shows the principal features of the public works program:

GOVERNMENT FINANCE

Government finance during 1940 was featured by a considerable decline in government revenue and by continued heavy government expenditures. It is noted that there was a definite trend toward an excess of current expenditures over current income. Another important feature was the very heavy governmental investment in Government corporations or undertakings which placed an increasingly large share of government assets in fixed investments, effecting a substantial reduction in liquid reserves and in unappropriated surplus. Despite these somewhat unfavorable tendencies, government finance generally was in very good condition.

Budget.—The fiscal period of the Commonwealth Government has been changed from the calendar year to the twelve months period ending with June, this change having come into effect with the fiscal year ended June 30, 1940, there having been an interim budget covering the first six months of 1939. Details of the budget for the fiscal year 1940-1941, together with actual expenditures for the first half of 1939, are summarized below (in thousand pesos):

It should be explained that the above figures cover only the General Fund, excluding Special and Bond Funds. The funds secured as a result of refunds of the United States excise tax on coconut oil have been budgeted and accounted for separately beginning January 1, 1931. Budgets covering these funds were drawn up for the eighteen months ended June 30, 1940, and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1941. Details are summarized below, together with actual expenditures during the January 1, 1939 to June 30, 1940 period (in thousand pesos):

The budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1942, has just been introduced to the National Assembly. Complete details concerning this budget are not available at present, but the principal features are summarized below:

Budget for Fiscal Year 1941-1942

Ordinary Income	₱ 82,310,000
Plus Estimated Unappropriated Surplus on July 1, 1941, as adjusted	20,672,082
Proceeds from Sale of Bonds	10,000,000
Total Available	₱112,982,082
Ordinary Expenditures, net	₱ 99,278,350
Capital Expenditures	12,397,130
Total Expenditures	₱111,675,480
Available Unappropriated Surplus on June 30, 1942	₱ 1,306,602
Less Reserved for Depreciation and Loss of Continuing Assets	1,000,000
NET TOTAL	₱ 306,602

It will be noted that this represents a new departure in Philippine Government finance, in that expenditures are subdivided into two headings, namely "ordinary expenditures" and "capital expenditures". By "capital expenditures" is meant permanent investments or investments which are to be amortized over a long period, such expenditures being financed by means of bond issues. The budget represents a new departure also, in that there is a substantial excess of ordinary expenditures over ordinary income.

Actual Receipts and Expenditures.—Actual receipts of the Commonwealth Government for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1940, totaled ₱158,029,869, while expenditures during the period amounted to ₱183,616,273. These compare with receipts of ₱87,808,479 and expenditures of ₱84,795,162 during the six months period ended June 30, 1939. These figures include all expenditures from the General, Coconut Oil, Special and Bond Funds. Details are summarized below:

Tax Revenue During 1940.—Total collections by the Bureaus of Customs and Internal Revenue during 1940 amounted to ₱93,065,695, which compares with ₱94,665,236 for the previous year, or a decline during the current year of ₱1,599,541 or 1.7 percent. Internal revenue collections during the year recorded a net increase of ₱2,178,912 or about five percent. The gains were principally in income taxes, license and business taxes, documentary stamp taxes and inheritance taxes. Increases were noted in all important tax items, with the sole exception of domestic excise taxes. Collections by the Bureau of Customs for the year showed a net decline of ₱3,778,453 or about eight percent compared with 1939. This was due to a drop of ₱6,440,053 or 24 percent in customs collections owing entirely to war conditions, which diverted imports from foreign countries to the United States, such imports not being subject to duty. Special fund collections recorded a gain of ₱2,661,600 or about 12 percent. Details are as follows:

Bureau of Internal Revenue—
Revenue from Taxation	₱41,482,400	₱42,719,791
Incidental Revenue	4,192,206	4,280,204

Special Fund Collections	21,634,246	24,295,846
Total	₱48,870,428	₱45,091,975
GRAND TOTAL	₱94,665,236	₱93,065,695

The Commonwealth Government anticipates a decline of approximately ₱10,000,000 in revenue during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1940. The decline in total ordinary revenue during the period from July to December 1940, which represents the first half of the fiscal year, amounts to only ₱1,539,438. It would appear doubtful whether there will be a decline of about ₱8,500,000 during the second half of the fiscal year period. However, a very marked drop in income tax collections may be anticipated and further declines in customs revenue appear to be inevitable.

Public Debt.—The Philippine public debt is comparatively small, amounting to only ₱4.55 per capita at the close of 1940. The debt has shown a gradual downward tendency during recent years, with ample interest and amortization provided for. Furthermore, the debt will be further reduced as a result of the imposition of export taxes beginning January 1, 1941. The proceeds of these taxes are to be used solely to retire the public debt and it is calculated that by the time of independence in 1946, the proceeds will be sufficient to completely retire the portion of the debt which is held in the United States. Details of the net amount of public debt for the past two fiscal years are summarized below (in thousand pesos):

	Fiscal Year ended June 30
	1939	1940
National Bonds	58,767	54,053

These figures represent the net indebtedness, the sinking fund reserve having been deducted from the amount actually outstanding. Details concerning the public debt as of December 31, 1940, are as follows (in thousand pesos):

	Authorized	Issued	Retired or Cancelled	Outstanding	Sinking Fund	Net indebtedness

It will be noted that the figures show a very substantial increase in total assets, although this is confined to special funds and to long-term or fixed investments, there having been a considerable reduction both in current assets and current surplus.

Government Corporations.—The Commonwealth Government operates a large number of Government companies which are engaged in various economic activities. Complete details concerning operations of these concerns during 1940 are not procurable, but information collected from various sources shows that the major enterprises realized combined net profits of ₱5,776,718 during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1940, as shown in the following tabulation:

	Fiscal Year ended June 30, 1940
National Development Company*	₱ 128,299

(*) Operating income only, excluding cash dividends received from Cebu Portland Cement Company and other subsidiaries.
( ) Represents Loss.

Detailed information concerning the National Abaca and other fibers corporation, the National Tobacco Corporation and the National Coconut Corporation is not available, but it is probable that none of these companies will show any profit on current operations.

It is apparent from the foregoing tabulation that four Government enterprises earned large profits during the period, while two others were fairly successful. The earnings of these six concerns more than balanced losses incurred by nine other undertakings.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Since the value of the Philippine monetary unit is fixed by law at ₱1.00 equals US $0.50, fluctuations in exchange are theoretically possible only within the limits at which the Insular Treasurer will buy or sell United States dollars. These rates are 7/8 percent premium for telegraphic transfers on New York and ½ percent premium on 30 days drafts on New York, the reverse figures being 7/8 percent discount for telegraphic transfers on Manila and ½ percent discount on 30 days drafts on Manila. Actually, open market rates show slight fluctuations beyond these limits.

Exchange against the United States dollar was practically stationary throughout 1940. The demand for dollar exchange was very much in excess of the supply of pesos with the result that the dollar was at a premium throughout the year, the market rate corresponding closely to that at which the Insular Treasurer will sell the United States dollar. The open market telegraphic transfer selling rate on New York was 201.25 in January, but advanced to 201.50 in February and maintained this rate throughout the remainder of the year. The market became slightly easier toward the close of 1940 owing to heavy shipments of sugar and to substantial sales of dollars by banks to bolster their cash position.

Exchange transactions of local banks recorded a moderate increase during 1940 and continued to reflet a very much oversold position. Details are as follows:

	1939	1940
Spot
Bought	₱179,328,600	₱187,959,369
Sold	269,206,370	271,876,245
Future
Bought	136,209,256	113,868,940
Sold	133,774,328	142,808,804

In order to cover their very heavy sales, banks found it necessary to purchase very large quantities of demand drafts from the Insular Treasurer during 1940, the total of such transactions reaching the unprecedented amount of ₱82,290,000. Complete details of exchange sales by the Insular Treasurer during 1939 and 1940 are as follows:

	1939	1940
Telegraphic Transfers to Government	₱ 8,600,000	₱ 7,850,000
Demand Drafts to Government	356,888	266,318
Demand Drafts to Banks	28,950,000	82,290,000
Total	₱37,906,888	₱90,406,318

Hosted by Google

It will be noted that during the year bank sales of exchange were ₱112,856,740 in excess of purchases. This is partially balanced by purchases of demand drafts from the Insular Treasurer amounting to ₱82,290,000. The difference of slightly over ₱30,000,000 would appear to indicate a net oversold position of this amount. It is probable that bank sales of forward exchange which has not been covered were considerably less than these figures indicate. A possible explanation is that over-the-counter exchange transactions are not always included in bank reports of exchange while some banks include interbank transactions in their exchange reports.

It is difficult to account for the strength of the dollar in view of the very substantial excess of exports in foreign trade. Insufficient data are available to estimate the balance of international payments. It is certain that the favorable position with respect to "visibles" is offset by an unfavorable balance of "invisibles", such as payments for shipping, insurance and other services, interest and dividend payments and capital movement. Possible explanations for the situation apparent in the foregoing figures are as follows:

1. There has been an actual net outward movement of capital, this being apparent in: (a) an increase in bank loans, the proceeds of which were used for foreign remittances; (b) a reduction in bank deposits, representing transfers of peso accounts to dollar or other foreign currencies; (c) an actual direct outward movement of capital in other ways; and (d) increased investment in American securities owing to the inactivity of the local securities market.

2. Increased payments for ocean freight and insurance. Ocean freight rates during 1940 were at least double those of 1939, while payments for war risk insurance was an added factor. This item has been partially balanced by increased Philippine shipping, but the net outgo during 1940 was certainly very much larger.

3. Remittances abroad of earnings of local branches of American and foreign companies. It is believed that such remittances have been very substantial, but no definite figures are procurable.

4. Payment of dividends on securities held abroad and interest and amortization charges on Philippine bonds held abroad.

5. Sales to countries with exchange restrictions resulting in temporary stoppage of return of proceeds which is equivalent to a temporary export of capital. Example would be the sale of tobacco and manufactures to Spain and of various commodities to Japan.

6. A very substantial reduction in income from tourists and travelers owing to war conditions. Present indications are that the balance of tourists' expenditures is definitely adverse to the Philippines.

7. War relief remittances. There have been fairly substantial remittances of this type by British and Chinese residents of the Philippines, such remittances representing a net export of capital.

8. Non-return of proceeds of exports of merchandise.

9. Substantial excess of payments for insurance of all sorts.

MONEY MARKET AND BANKING

Banking conditions during 1940 were featured by a gradual increase in bank loans and discounts, accompanied by a very substantial contraction in deposits and in banks' cash on hand. This trend was evident practically throughout the year. It is believed that the increase in bank loans is a reflection of the adverse economic conditions prevailing during the year, which made retirement of loans very difficult and necessitated extensions of existing loans. The decline in deposits and in cash on hand would appear to indicate a net outward movement of capital, or perhaps a loss of capital due to heavy import financing. The principal banking statistics for the past two years are summarized below (in thousand pesos):

	Dec. 29 1939	Dec. 28 1940
Investments	30,166	31,497
Cash on hand	62,589	42,882
Loans, discounts and overdrafts	223,490	217,868
Net amount due from banks, agencies and branches in the Philippines	4,074	2,937
Net amount due from other (foreign) banks	16,176	22,113
Total Resources	377,105	354,636
Demand deposits	97,629	89,536
Savings and time deposits	131,557	125,571
Net amount due from Philippine branches to foreign head offices	36,776	32,947
Capital of domestic banks	27,573	28,741
Surplus, reserves and undivided profits—domestic banks	25,824	27,246
Government Reserves—Total	223,296	214,784
Currency Circulation—Total	200,456	189,908
" " —Net active	170,106	158,737

	1939	1940
Bank clearings (Manila)	320,520	320,434
Import bills for collection	164,656	152,666
Letters of credit issued	70,988	57,559
Debits to individual accounts (weekly averages)	41,793	41,276

It should be pointed out that these figures are for all banks except the Agricultural and Industrial Bank. The exclusion of figures for this bank affects the comparative value of the statistics, since this institution was functioning on a very small scale during 1939 but was very active in 1940. The figures show a reduction of about ₱5,600,000 during 1940 in loans, discounts and overdrafts outstanding. This decline is due entirely to exclusion of the advances of the Agricultural and Industrial Bank which made very substantial loans during the year and also took over various loans of other banks. At the end of 1939, the Agricultural and Industrial Bank had outstanding loans of ₱2,575,903, while the corresponding figure for the close of 1940 was ₱17,808,902. Adding these figures to those for other banks gives a total of ₱226,066,000 at the end of 1939 and ₱235,678,000 at the close of 1940.

It is believed that the decline of some ₱14,000,000 in total deposits during 1940 represents a loss of capital owing to various causes, including: (1) actual export of capital; (2) financing of imports; and (3) a reduction in deposits of public funds. It is not believed that any part of the reduction in deposits was due to the withdrawal of funds as a result of lack of confidence in the stability of local banks.

The reduction of almost ₱20,000,000 in banks' cash on hand during 1940 was an outstanding development of the year. It is probable that the principal cause for this reduction was the very substantial purchases by banks of dollar drafts from the Insular Treasurer in order to finance exchange commitments. This matter is discussed in detail in the "Foreign Exchange" section of this report.

There was a net drop of almost ₱4,000,000 during 1940 in the net amount due from Philippine branches to foreign head offices. This is a tendency which developed only during the latter part of the year, possibly due to the lack of profitable outlet for foreign capital in this market. There was a decline of some ₱8,500,000 in total Government reserves. This was a result of a contraction of ₱11,467,635 in the Treasury Certificate Fund, partially offset by an increase of ₱2,955,796 in the Exchange Standard Fund.

Banking operations were slightly less favorable during 1940, as indicated in the following summary:

	December 31, 1939	December 31, 1940
Gross Income	₱ 8,283,811	₱8,411,058
Net Operating Profit	3,640,864	3,563,920
Surplus	14,476,995	14,742,491
Reserves	9,998,646	10,832,538
Undivided Profits	1,905,256	1,847,361

It will be noted that there was a slight increase in gross income of banks, but that operating costs were somewhat higher, causing a moderate decline in net profit. There was a fair increase in cash reserves of domestic banks, but undivided profits were lower.

Banking activity, as evidenced by bank clearings in Manila, was practically the same in 1940 as in the previous year. The published figures would appear to indicate a decline during 1940 in banks import financing, there being a contraction of some ₱12,000,000 in the value of import bills for collection and a reduction of more than ₱13,400,000 in the value of letters of credit issued. Banks average weekly debits to individual accounts during 1940 were slightly below the previous year.

The Banco Hipotecario de Filipinas commenced operations during 1940, while there were additions of two in the number of local banks but a contraction in the number of local agencies. Details are as follows:

Currency Circulation.—There was a very substantial contraction in currency circulation during 1940, this being a continuation of a trend which commenced in 1939. Monthly average total circulation amounted to ₱182,374,304 in 1940 compared with ₱190,984,550 in 1939, while net active circulation (excluding amounts in Treasury vaults available for circulation) recorded a net decrease of ₱11,363,000 during the year. Details of circulation as of December 31, 1939 and 1940 are given below (in pesos):

Capital Investments.—Investments in new corporations during 1940 recorded an increase of 22 in the total number of companies but a decline of ₱580,198 or six percent in total paid capital. It should be pointed out that considerably more than half of total corporate investments during 1940 was represented by Government corporations established during the year. It is believed, therefore, that private corporate investments were extremely small during the period. Total investments in new partnerships during 1940 showed an increase of ₱815,614 or 24 percent compared with the previous year. Combined paid capital of corporations and partnerships in 1940 shows an increase of ₱234,416 or almost two percent compared with 1939. However, this increase is largely nominal since the sole reason is the previously mentioned heavy investment in new Government corporations.

Analysis of statistics for 1940 shows very pronounced changes in the character of undertakings. Investment in merchandising corporations accounted for nearly 60 percent of the 1940 total, against only about eight percent in 1939. Next in importance was an increase in manufacturing concerns, representing 13 percent of the total during the current year against seven percent in 1939. The only other gains in 1940 were in electric light and ice plant and transportation companies. Very substantial declines were apparent with respect to investment in banking and real estate.

Corresponding analysis of the partnership statistics shows an almost three-fold increase in brokerage companies and a moderate gain in merchandising and construction concerns, with manufacturing and lumbering concerns showing substantial decreases.

Corporate investment by nationalities in 1940 shows a tremendous increase in Filipino participation, although this may be attributed largely to Government investments. American corporate investments gained moderately while there was an extremely large relative increase in Japanese investments. Investments by miscellaneous nationalities also increased fairly materially, but Chinese corporate investments fell about 78 percent.

Partnership investment by nationalities shows an extremely large actual and relative increase in investments by Americans; a somewhat smaller gain in Filipino investments; and substantial declines in Chinese, British-Indian and miscellaneous nationalities.

Details of corporate and partnerships investments are given in the following comparative table:

Credits and Collections.—There was a gradual deterioration in the credit situation during 1940, the principal cause being the extremely low prices of the major Philippine products with the consequent reduction in general purchasing power. Collections were progressively poor during the first nine months but improved moderately during the last quarter. Banks of necessity followed a very conservative policy with respect to loans, but with the exception of a short period during July, there was no sudden contraction in banking credit with consequent forced liquidations.

The following tabulation will indicate the trend during the year:

STOCK MARKET

Trading on the Manila Stock Exchange during 1940 was restricted largely to selective shares. The dull character of the market throughout the year can be attributed to the European war and to general unsettled international affairs with accompanying dislocation of trade and industry. With market prices of listed stocks falling rapidly during the first quarter of the year regardless of favorable reports of production of most mining companies, the Government considered methods of halting the downward trend of prices and attempted to attract new capital.

The Securities and Exchange Commission announced on June 11, 1940, the pegging of prices on the securities market, which control has been maintained throughout the remainder of the year. The Government's action in this regard was hailed in most quarters as highly necessary at that time, but has proved irksome to operators at the end of the year when they began agitating for removal of the "pegs" and return to free trading.

The following table of sales of mining stocks indicates the normal reaction of the Exchange insofar as high points at the beginning and end of the year are concerned. It also shows, however, a substantial decrease in total value of sales of listed mining shares.

The peak month of 1940 was 78 percent less than the peak month of 1939 and the low month of 1940 was 95 percent below the record low for 1939. Total sales were 80 percent lower than those reported for the previous year.

Increasing interest was displayed during the year in commercial and industrial issues, with the value of transactions in this field reported at ₱2,687,766 for 1940, against ₱934,380 during 1939. Most of the commercial and industrial stocks transferred were of large and well-known commercial and industrial entities and doubtlessly many of the transfers were due to financial pressure on small holders of such stocks. In most cases, a ready market was found for such sellers.

BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION

Real Estate Transfers.—Total real estate sales for 1940 showed a substantial increase over sales during 1939 and were slightly under those for 1937, which was the highest total on record since 1919. The following table shows reported real estate sales during the past five years (in pesos):

	1937	1938	1938	1939	1940

Total	18,557,845	24,175,365	19,522,521	20,609,957	23,871,634

It will be noted that the highest monthly record was established in January 1940, with sales amounting to ₱6,289,667 or approximately 26 percent of total sales for the year 1940.

The decline in exports and other depressing factors appear to have increased interest in real estate and operators claim not only increases in speculative and investment sales but also a revival of interest by foreign capital in the local real estate market. Prices during the year were consistently upward but no sudden large increases were reported.

Interest in commercial real estate was normal, while residential properties received increased interest, with suburban properties, developed and close to the city, enjoying preference. Interest in undeveloped suburban property was reported as declining.

No new large scale real estate developments were reported during the year, although consideration apparently had been given by both the Government and private capital to new developments which were later abandoned because of the unsettled international situation. Operators were optimistic concerning the immediate future, but expressed some concern for the latter future because of the possibility of further decreases in local commodity prices due to high freight rates, loss of market and additional taxes.

Building Permits.—According to building permits issued during 1940, there was a slight decline in private building activity during the year, and lack of activity was apparent in the construction of large homes and industrial buildings. Construction of small homes was normal during the year. The largest private constructions were apartment buildings, of which four large ones were completed during the year, and three office buildings. January was the most important month reported during the year, as well as a high since March 1938. Details of new construction during 1939 and 1940 are given below (in pesos):

January	447,350	1,117,380
February	1,048,420	1,096,460
March	635,090	921,800
April	1,012,320	987,280
May	1,036,140	719,770
June	788,380	529,230
July	478,620	325,460
August	608,430	618,640
September	536,170	584,920
October	628,320	961,790
November	437,410	471,460
December	1,089,670	8,323,330
Total	8,746,320	8,657,520

Repairs to existing structures increased during 1940 according to permits issued, which is a further evidence of the lack of interest in new private construction. Details during 1939 and 1940 are as follows (in pesos):

	1939	1940
January	14,050	15,930
February	12,710	12,710
March	25,290	14,150

November	23,230	13,540
December	13,950	13,640
Total	197,479	235,520

Government construction activities, on the other hand, were very much in evidence. The new City Hall, the Department of Agriculture and Commerce and the Department of Finance buildings were practically completed by the end of 1940 and should be ready for occupancy by March 1941. After some delay, construction work was undertaken on the Unviersity of the Philippines building in Quezon City, where it is planned to erect approximately fifteen buildings. The Government provincial hospital construction plan was also approved and construction authorized of three new hospitals immediately.

The year witnessed continued activity in the construction of roads and bridges both in the provinces and in the cities.

Building Materials.—The building materials market started off well at the beginning of 1940, but began to taper off about March due to low prices of local commodities at that time. Some slight improvement was noted at the end of the year. The largest purchaser throughout the year was the Philippine Government. Prices increased throughout the year and at the end of 1940 had reached the limit permitted by the Government. Stocks were fairly well maintained for the first three quarters of 1940, but reached a low point at the end of the year, which did not, however, cause any hardship as purchases were only made to meet immediate requirements.

LABOR AND WAGES

Labor conditions were more satisfactory during 1941 than during 1939 due to: (1) clarification through usage of the various laws enacted during 1939; (2) the activities of the Department of Labor in making adjustments between workers and employers; and (3) the functioning of the Court of Industrial Relations. The two former were generally considered the more beneficial of the three, in that they resulted in agreements between workers and employers and eliminated the delay and expense incident to cases brought before the Court of Industrial Relations. The Court of Industrial Relations, on the other hand, had a definite place in the labor picture during the year in clarifying the previously enacted laws and in settling those problems which could not be settled by arbitration.

The outstanding legislation during 1940 was the enactment on June 7, 1940, of an amending law of the Court of Industrial Relations, and on August 22, 1940, of an act to regulate the relations between land-owner and tenant and to provide for compulsory arbitration of any controversy arising between them. Other legislation affecting labor and wages indirectly was an act suspending the effects of action for ejectment against tenants which the Government might seek to acquire through purchase or expropriation proceedings; an act authorizing the acquisition of private lands for resale in small lots by the Government; an act to stabilize the sugar industry; the National Emergency Act; and an act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the Philippines.

Labor Disputes, Strikes and Threatened Strikes.—A total of 158 strikes or threatened strikes were registered in the Philippines during 1940, as compared with 222 reported during 1939. Of the total, 35 were actual strikes and 123 threatened strikes. There were 18,728 workers affected during 1940, whereas 20,426 were affected during 1939. Of the cases settled by arbitration, 115 were substantially in favor of the workers and the remaining 16 substantially in favor of the employers. During the year 1940, there were 27 cases submitted to the Court of Industrial Relations. Of the disputes declared, 139 involved unionists and the remaining 19 were declared by non-unionists. These statistics cover registered disputes only as there is little information covering unregistered disputes which were settled between workers and employers without necessity of an arbitrator. The causes which gave rise to the registered disputes were as follows:

Wages—	Number

Total	158

The Department of Labor intervered and provided solution for 1,270 tenancy disputes during 1940 which involved 4,371 tenants. The disputes involved 740 unionists and 530 non-unionists. Adjustments were made in favor of 981 tenants and 289 landlords. The amount involved was ₱167,111, of which ₱138,364 was recovered. The causes giving rise to tenancy conflicts were as follows:

	Number
Unfair liquidation	762
Non-payment of services	120
Ejection	213
Demand for increased shares	46
Against increase of canons	22
Violation of Rice Tenancy Act	51
Return of mortgaged land	6
Confiscation of harvest	21
Other causes	29
Total	1,270

Wage Changes.—There was a slight increase in wages during 1940 and increases made last year were maintained generally. Statistics are not readily available in this regard, but informed sources are of the opinion that a slight improvement in wages took place during 1940, this in the face of increased costs of transportation and lost markets in some instances due to the European war.

Changes in Living Conditions and Cost of Living.—Living conditions and cost of living for the laboring classes were reported as approximately the same during 1940 as in 1939, with commodity prices slightly lower in some instances. Rice, fish and fruits showed a slight decrease and meats and vegetables a slight increase.

Labor Union Developments and Changes.—The growth of labor unions continued during 1940 but at a greatly decreased tempo, as can be seen in the following table of registered labor organizations during 1937 to 1940 inclusive:

	Central Unions	Branches	Memberships
1937	16	—	7,594
1938	80	108	46,456
1939	169	182	84,013
1940	194	197	96,877

At the close of December 31, 1940, the permits issued to 46 independent unions and 39 branches with a total membership of 12,519 expired or were revoked. Under Commonwealth Act No. 213 enacted on November 21, 1936, labor unions are required to register with the Department of Labor.

Unemployment Conditions. — Unemployment statistics are not readily available in the Philippines and estimates vary widely. On the basis of estimates from various sources, it would appear that there are approximately 500,000 unemployed in the Philippines between the ages of 20 and 65 years, of which approximately 35,000 are in the City of Manila. The increasing number of unemployed drifting to the City of Manila has caused increasing alarm among local officials and every effort is being made to keep unemployed workers in their own localities and to provide emergency work for them there.

Land Settlement Projects.—The Government land settlement projects continued to be active during 1940, with increasing interest being shown in these endeavors. No new settlements were established during the year but substantial progress was made in the development of already established projects. According to the National Land Settlement Administration, there were 9,710 settlers on January 27, 1941, compared with 1,591 settlers on January 1, 1940.

TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATIONS

Shipping.—The general dislocation of shipping which was apparent after the outbreak of the war in Europe continued throughout the year 1940, with both shippers and carriers attempting to make readjustments to meet changing conditions. Conditions during the first half of the year were less satisfactory than during the latter half when market conditions improved, more ships were made available and better utilization of space introduced. In particular, the unsettled condition of the sugar market in the early part of the year and the reluctance of mills to make shipments resulted in ships leaving the Philippines with only partial cargoes. This situation was cleared up after the first quarter of the year. Month by month statistics during 1940 fluctuated widely, but the year's totals showed increases in tonnage over previous years in most instances, due largely to heavy shipments to the United States. With the exception of European ports, export tonnage was larger than reported during any of the past four years.

The most important development during the year was the increase in ocean freight rates, with further continued increases in 1941. The soaring rates have caused the gravest concern among shippers and importers who believe that the limit will soon be reached when it will no longer pay to export local commodities and when prices of imported articles become prohibitive. On the other hand, both shippers and carriers realize that lucrative cargoes are waiting in Australia and Malaya and that unless similar cargoes are available in Manila, ships would have to be withdrawn thus jeopardizing the life line of the Philippines.

There was a fair improvement in revenue tonnage during 1940 which, in view of the difficulties surrounding overseas shipping, may be considered very satisfactory. According to figures of the Associated Steamship Lines, there was a slight decrease in total sailings from the Philippines, with 1,060 sailings reported for 1940 against 1,092 sailings for 1939. The American share of the trade was substantially higher, with 234 sailings in 1940 compared with 101 sailings reported during 1939. Details are as follows (in tons):

	1939	1940
China and Japan	1,217,292	1,540,092
Pacific Coast:

Shipping Outlook for 1941.—Unless some drastic change takes place during the year, the readjustments made should assure the Philippines of sufficient space to meet all requirements during the year. It is understood that a substantial amount of sugar will be shipped to the United States during the first quarter of the year and that space has been booked for over 75 percent of the present quota during the first half of the year.

Railways.—Freight carloadings of the Manila Railroad for the year 1940 amounted to 1,583,088 tons, which is an increase of six percent over the figure of 1,491,276 tons reported for 1939. Details are as follows (in tons):

No other statistics are available regarding freight movements. There were no important developments in this field during the year. It should be remembered that the percentage of total freight carried by the railroad is small and that the railroad serves a limited area.

Motor Transportation.—Motor transportation continued to improve and expand during 1940. Although no statistics are available concerning the amount of freight or passengers carried, the following table of motor vehicles in operation at the end of 1940 based on official reports, compared with 1938 and 1939, indicates the growth of the industry:

Aviation.—Trans-Pacific air service was the brightest element in the transportation picture during the year 1940. There was an increase of more than 250 percent over 1939 in passenger and air express carried during the year and an increase of greater than 400 percent over the year 1937, which was the first full year of operation. With difficulties of other forms of transportation from the British East Indies to Europe, a substantial amount of such traffic is now routed through Manila and transferred here to trans-Pacific air service to the United States and Europe. The trans-Pacific air service has contributed greatly to the expeditious and efficient conduct of business between the Philippines and the United States, and all its facilities are being used to an increasing extent.

There was a decrease in domestic aviation activities during 1940. The following table indicates declines in all items compared with 1939, except student pilots, airports and landing fields and radio stations:

(*) Incomplete—four airplanes have not yet reported.

From this table, it would appear that facilities for domestic aviation are improving, but the local industry is not taking advantage of all its possibilities.

During the year, the Manila-Baguio flights were abandoned, but it has been reported that this service would begin again sometime during 1941.

Radio and Telegraph.—Although few facilities or extentions of this service were reported during 1940, business improved approximately 15 percent over the previous year. Due to overstocking of merchandise during the latter part of 1939, telegraphic communications to the United States decreased during the early part of 1940, but as stocks became normal such communications increased substantially, bringing the year's total business above that reported last year. There were no new companies established during the year. One of the outstanding developments during 1940 was the equalizing of rates by all companies.

Commercial Radio Broadcasting.—General development and improvement took place in this industry during 1940. Power was increased in one station and a new station was placed in operation during the year.

Telephones.—Telephone facilities were improved during 1940. There was an increase of from 30,386 telephone stations in 1939 to 31,419 telephone stations in 1940. Additional radiotelephone facilities were installed in Luzon during the year and a new service established bewteen the Philippines and Australia. The gross total revenue of the telephone company from operations during 1940 amounted to ₱3,463,071, or an increase of ₱191,282 over 1939.

SUGAR

The export sugar quota for the fiscal year ended October 31, 1940, was placed at 952,000 short tons commercial weight, of which not more than 58,000 short tons might consist of refined sugar. This quota is in accordance with the provisions of the Tydings-McDuffie Act which established a duty-free quota for Philippine sugar entering the United States at the above figure.

Since exports are confined to the duty-free quota, this quota in recent years was invariably been fixed at the stated amount.

The domestic consumption quota for the current sugar year was fixed at 150,235 short tons which compares with only 94,838 short tons for the previous year. The quota for the present period is abnormally high, being substantially in excess of actual domestic consumption which is estimated at from 110,000 to 120,000 short tons per year. It should be noted that this figure excludes muscovado and panocha production, consumption of which amounts to about 12,000 short tons annually. The reserve quota for the current year was fixed at 110,000 short tons, representing a slight reduction from the total of 115,425 short tons for the previous sugar year. In accordance with usual practice, the reserve quota is placed at approximately 10 percent of the sum of the export and domestic quotas.

Actual production of centrifugal sugar during 1939-1940 sugar year amounted to 1,049,015 short tons from the current year's crop. In addition, mills were permitted to produce additional quantities from the subsequent year's crop against 1940 quotas and such production to December 22, 1940, amounted to 21,380 short tons, bringing total production against the quota to 1,070,395 short tons. Total production fell somewhat below the 1,162,263 short tons for the previous year but exceeded the earlier estimate of 1,020,596 short tons. The latest production statistics for muscovado and panocha are for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1939, being reported as 4,763 metric tons of muscovado and 7,532 metric tons of panocha.

Exports are constant at 952,000 short tons, since as previously stated, shipments to the United States are confined to the duty-free quota while exports to other countries are not permitted under the London Sugar Agreement. Actual shipments during the sugar year show minor variations from this figure, since the United States quota is on a calendar year basis whereas the export quota is on the basis of sugar years ending with October. Furthermore, there are additional variations due to loss of weight and damage. At one time, it was feared that the export quota for 1940 would not be filled, but heavy shipments during September and October brought the total to the full quota amount. Shipments for the twelve months ended October 31, 1940, amounted to 810,356 long tons of centrifugal and 48,295 long tons of refined sugar, or a total of 858,651 long tons. This compares with 803,034 long tons of centrifugal and 49,584 long tons of refined for the previous fiscal year.

The market for export sugar was governed entirely by conditions in the United States. During the first quarter of 1940, the New York market was weak and irregular influenced by war uncertainties and by heavy stocks resulting from large arrivals of non-quota sugar during the latter part of 1939, when the United States quotas were temporarily suspended. Prices in the New York market were fairly steady during the quarter, ranging from 2.80 to 2.90 cents per pound.

During the second quarter, the market was subjected to very sharp fluctuations as a result of the intensified war in Europe, particularly the extension of hostilities to beet producing areas. Prices reached a peak in May of 3 cents per pound but subsequently declined in June to a low of 2.68 cents. The weakness continued during the third quarter although there was a favorable reaction to a reduction of 136,383 short tons in the United States consumption quota, prices during the quarter ranging from 2.62 to 2.75 cents per pound. There was a gradual improvement during the last quarter of the year, the principal causes being the large domestic consumption; improved economic conditions in the United States; the extension of the Sugar Act through 1941; and the announcement of somewhat lower United States consumption quotas for the coming year. Prices gradually advanced to the level of 2.90 cents, which is approximately the same as the price obtaining at the beginning of the year.

Local prices for export sugar failed to follow the New York trend, since they were abnormally depressed by the great increase in ocean freight rates and other transportation charges, the Conference rate to the east coast of the United States advancing to $15.00 per short ton against an average of from $6.00 to $7.00 per short ton during 1939. Prices on the local market reached a peak of ₱6.40 per picul in February, subsequently declining steadily to a low of ₱4.70 early in September. The market showed an upward tendency during October and November but weakened again in December owing to a further increase in freight rates. The average price of centrifugal sugar for export was ₱5.49 per picul of 63¼ kilos for the year, which is unquestionably an all-time low and compares with ₱6.58 for 1939.

The domestic sugar market was influenced during 1940 by a potential shortage of supply owing to reduced production during 1938 and 1939. Prices were very strong during the first half of the year, averaging considerably above those for export sugar. The market weakened markedly during the second half of the year owing to abnormally low consumption and generally depressed economic conditions, quotations reaching a low for the year during December. The average price for the year was ₱5.67 per picul of 63¼ kilos, which compares with ₱5.95 per picul for 1939.

Mill stocks of sugar at the end of the actual milling season on August 4, 1940, were reported as 274,629 short tons, representing a carry-over of reserve sugar from the previous year amounting to 44,916 short tons plus mill production of 1,049,015 short tons less deliveries of 819,302 short tons. Commitments and quotas for export and domestic consumption sugar for the remainder of the sugar year totaled 286,076 short tons, leaving a theoretical shortage of supply of 11,447 short tons. However, actual deliveries of domestic consumption sugar were much less than the 150,235 short tons provided in the quota. Actually, the following tabulation represents a fair approximation of supply and distribution during the current sugar year:

	Short Tons
Supply—
Stocks beginning of sugar year ...	44,916
Mill production	1,049,015
Total	1,093,931
Distribution—
Exports	982,000
Domestic deliveries	110,000
Total	1,092,000
Stocks end of Sugar Year	1,931

If we add to the above stock figure the additional production of 21,380 short tons against the 1940 quota, we have an actual reserve of 23,311 short tons.

Quotas for the 1940-1941 sugar year have been placed at 952,000 short tons of export sugar; 150,455 short tons of domestic consumption sugar; and 110,000 short tons of reserve sugar, or a total of 1,212,455 short tons. The latest estimate of production for the year is 1,035,000 short tons. The estimated carry-over of 23,311 short tons plus the estimated production of 1,035,000 short tons give a total supply for the coming fiscal year of 1,058,311 short tons, which is 154,144 short tons below the total quota. Assuming that the export quota will be filled, the amount available for domestic consumption and reserve will be 106,311 short tons. This will be barely sufficient to cover domestic consumption and certainly fails to provide for a reserve.

On June 7, 1940, President Quezon approved Commonwealth Act No. 567. This law was designed to adjust and prepare for eventualities of loss of preferential position in the United States market and the imposition of export taxes. The law provides for a tax on sugar produced by sugar mills, the proceeds to be utilized for adjustment and improvement of the industry. A basic tax of two centavos per picul of sugar produced by sugar mills is provided with a progressive tax of from five to ten centavos per picul for each picul in which the miller's share is in excess of 40 percent. The bill provides also for a limit on rentals of leased sugar land at 12 percent of the assessed value of the land, any rentals in excess of this amount to be paid by the landlords to the Commonwealth Government in the form of taxes. During 1940, enforcement of the Act was confined to collection of the basic tax, action on the progressive tax being deferred for further consideration. During this period, there were no adjustments of the industry in accordance with the provisions of the law.

Outlook for 1941.—The outlook for the sugar industry for 1941 is very unfavorable. Beginning Janaury 1, 1941, shipments to the United States will be subject to export taxes equivalent to five percent of the United States import duty. This export tax is extremely complex since the rates based on polariscope tests, but it may be estimated roughly that the tax will amount to about 26 centavos per picul or about five percent of the current price of export sugar. The amount of the tax for 1941 will not be a serious burden to the industry, although it will depress prices to the full extent of the tax. The most unfavorable feature is with respect to ocean freight rates. It is fairly certain that there will be a very serious shortage of shipping space during the coming year and that rates will be very high. In November 1940, the Conference rate to the United States Atlantic Coast was fixed at $14.00 per short ton. Subsequently, there have been two advances, namely to $15.00 on December 14, 1940, and to $17.00 on January 7, 1941. Very little space is available at the Conference rate and shippers have entered into contracts recently at $18.50 per short ton, with numerous indications that the rate may advance to $20.00 in the early future. It is certain that these added freight charges will cause a corresponding reduction in local prices for export sugar, with a consequent serious reduction in earnings of the industry.

COCONUT PRODUCTS

The coconut industry is very important in Philippine economy. This country is the largest producer of copra in the world. Coconuts are grown in every province and about one-third of the population is dependent directly or indirectly on the industry. Production of coconuts and primary products in recent years has amounted to approximately ₱100,000,000 annually.

The market for coconut products was adversely affected during 1940 by war conditions. Access to the important European markets was greatly curtailed and finally almost completely cut off. In consequence, the industry was almost entirely dependent on the United States market as an outlet and this market suffered from a heavy oversupply of oils and fats of all sorts. The sharp increase in ocean freight rates, war risk insurance and other charges adversely affected export shipments and depressed domestic prices.

The depression in the local market which commenced during the latter part of 1939 was accelerated during the first quarter of 1940. During this period, there was a fair volume of shipments to Europe despite the scarcity of bottoms and the very high freight rates, but the United States market was fairly quiet. The extension of warfare in Europe during the second quarter practically shut off sales to the entire continent of Europe, although a fair volume of business was maintained with Great Britain. The United States market continued to suffer from an oversupply of oils and fats with consequent poor demand and low prices. The downward tendency continued through August, prices at that time having fallen to a new all-time low with volume extremely restricted. There was a moderate recovery beginning with September, this continuing throughout the remainder of the year. The principal causes for improved conditions were: (1) a moderate increase in demand in the United States; (2) the withdrawal of local sellers in reaction to the extremely low prices; and (3) a reduction in deliveries to primary markets which also may be attributed to low prices.

Copra prices moved downward steadily during the first eight months of 1940, reaching a record low of ₱2.75 per hundred kilos during August. The recovery during the latter months of the year was very moderate, copra being quoted at only ₱3.25 per hundred kilos at the close of December. Monthly average prices for 1940 were 34 percent below the previous year and some 57 percent less than the average for the five years 1935 to 1939 inclusive. Prices for coconut oil showed a corresponding tendency, reaching a low point in August with a moderate recovery during the latter months. The average price for the year was 19 percent below 1939 and 47 percent less than the average for the preceding five years.

Under the provisions of Commonwealth Act No. 518, which was approved on May 7, 1940, a National Coconut Corporation has been organized. The announced purposes of this corporation are to improve the quality of Philippine copra and develop the utilization of coconut by-products in order to adjust the coconut industry to a position independent of trade preferences in the United States. The corporation is authorized to grant production loans to Philippine coconut planters and copra producers but may not engage in actual marketing operations, its powers being limited to purchase and operation of copra drying plants and the establishment of presses, warehouses and other facilities. The corporation was engaged primarily in preliminary organization work during 1940. Its activities included the establishment of a modern school and experimental stations in the province of Tayabas and the development of various types of modern dryers for the curing of copra. The corporation also made considerable progress in the development of by-products, particularly the production of coconut shell charcoal and the introduction of machinery for the production of textile materials from coir fiber. Experiments were conducted with a view to the production of wood preservatives and metal paints by the destructive distillation of coconut shells. The corporation also organized a campaign to encourage local consumption of coconuts.

The principal statistics for the year are given below, together with comparative figures for 1939:

It will be noted that copra arrivals in Manila and Cebu increased nearly six percent during 1940. This would appear to indicate an increase in production during the year, but actually the gain may be attributed entirely to diversion to the principal centers of substantial quantities of copra which formerly had been exported directly from various outports. Exports during 1940 showed a drop of some 56,000 tons or about 14 percent compared with the previous year. This decline may be attributed entirely to war conditions, as evidenced by the very sharp drop in shipments to Europe, which was partially balanced by a substantial gain in exports to the United States. The figure of stocks at the close of the year shows a very heavy decline from the corresponding date of 1939. This may be attributed partly to curtailed production as a result of very unsatisfactory prices and partly to the withholding of stocks in various producing centers.

Coconut oil exports during 1940 showed a fairly substantial increase despite the extremely unfavorable conditions which obtained during the year. It will be noted that this gain was entirely in shipments to miscellaneous countries, since exports to the United States declined moderately. This is a new development since normally practically the entire Philippine production is shipped to the United States. Shipments to other countries during 1940 were principally to various British colonies and possessions, but toward the close of the year there was a significant increase in shipments to Japan, China and Asiatic Russia. Despite the heavy shipments during 1940, local stocks at the end of the year were substantially higher, which would appear to indicate a very marked increase in production.

Exports of copra cake and meal declined only 15,000 tons or about 14 percent during 1940. This comparatively favorable showing may be attributed primarily to the tremendous increase in exports to the United States which helped to offset the sharp decline in shipments to Europe. Sotcks at the end of the year were substantially the same as those at the beginning, despite smaller exports and probably much increased production. This may be attributed to the success attained in securing local outlets for excess production, particularly to the use of the products as a fertilizer and as a fuel.

The desiccated coconut industry showed no change in exports during 1940, but operations of local desiccators were more profitable since the cost of coconuts was much lower whereas export prices were fairly well maintained.

Outlook for 1941.—The outlook for 1941 is somewhat obscure since it will depend primarily upon war developments. It would appear to be certain that sales to Europe of both copra and copra meal will be very small regardless of war developments. There are possibilities of increased sales to the United States of coconut products owing to the reduction in excess stocks in that country and the possibility of substantial shipments of American foodstuffs to Great Britain and possibly to continental Europe.

The basic problem of the industry is with respect to shipping. It would appear to be inevitable that there will be increasing scarcity of shipping facilities and very high ocean freight rates, substantial increase above the present rates being highly probable. This undoubtedly will adversely affect sales during the year and probably will tend to depress local prices for those products. There appears to be some hope for increased returns from by-products, particularly coconut shell charcoal which has various war applications. Another development which may help the industry is the recent increase in sales to nearby Asiatic markets which, if continued, will help to compensate for the loss of sales to Europe.

Shipments to the United States during 1941 will be influenced by the provisions of the amendment to the Tydings-McDuffie Act which was passed by the United States Congress and approved on August 7, 1939. This law provided for the establishment of quotas for certain Philippine products and for the imposition of export taxes for other products. A quota of 200,000 long tons was established for coconut oil beginning with 1940, the quota being reduced by five percent for each subsequent year. The quota for 1941 would be 190,000 long tons, but this is very substantially above normal shipments and should not have any effect on total exports. Export taxes equivalent to five percent of the United States import duties are imposed on desiccated coconut and copra cake and meal beginning January 1, 1941, and increasing by five percent for subsequent years until 1946, when full United States import duties will be imposed. The rate on desiccated coconut for 1941 will amount to $0.0175 per pound, which may affect sales to some extent. On the basis of 1939 shipments, this will mean that this product will have to pay export taxes during the year of approximately $159,000. The tax on copra cake and meal is negligible and cannot materially affect sales to the United States since the rate for 1941 is only $0.0015 a pound.

It would probably be too optimistic to predict that the coconut industry in 1941 will be better ther marked declines in prices while the United States national defense program may possibly cause a substantial improvement in consumption during the year and result in higher prices for coconut products.

ABACA (MANILA HEMP) AND OTHER FIBERS

The abaca market was adversely affected by war conditions during 1940. Access to a large number of markets was completely cut off while sales to other areas were considerably restricted. Increased transportation and other costs had an adverse effect on local prices.

During the first quarter, the market was generally very weak. United States buying was limited largely to government purchases in small lots and generally at rather low prices. The London market was very quiet with the controller buying in small quantities at fixed prices which generally were rather low. Japanese buying also was light during this period owing to exchange and other restrictions.

The depression in the market was greatly increased during the second quarter as a result of the intensified war in Europe and the extension of hostilities to various countries. The London market was practically stagnant with almost no buying during the quarter. Sales to the entire continent of Europe were almost completely halted while United States buying continued to be somewhat limited. The Japanese market also was very quiet.

The local market improved gradually during the third quarter, an important influencing factor being the reluctance of sellers to dispose of their holdings at the extremely low prices prevailing at that time. Production also was very materially curtailed with the result that the statistical position of the market improved very materially. There was a fairly substantial volume of buying by United States Government entities, largely for the purpose of building up reserves. London also again entered the market particularly during the latter part of the quarter. Buying by Japan was somewhat restricted during July and August, but increased tremendously in September.

The improvement of the market was accelerated during the fourth quarter, the principal influencing factors being extremely heavy purchases by Japan, substantial United States Government buying and continued active purchases by London. During October and November, the market became highly speculative with prices moving upward very sharply. However, the market eased very considerably during December and was fairly quiet at the close of the year.

Prices on the local market moved downward steadily during the first half of 1940, reaching the lowest level in many years at the close of June. Prices began to move upward slowly during the second half of the year, the trend being accelerated during the fourth quarter with a peak attained in November and a moderate reactional decline noted in December. Although prices at the end of the year were substantially above those at the beginning, the average for the period was extremely low, being some 15 percent below 1939 and 41 percent less than the average for the years 1936-1939 inclusive. These prices estimates are based on published nominal quotations for grades F and J-2, representing monthly averages.

Balings during 1940 were considerably smaller owing to the unsatisfactory price situation. The total for the year shows a decline of some 56,000 bales or nearly three percent compared with 1939. The effect of prices on production is clearly apparent in monthly baling statistics, the peak output occurring during October and November which coincides with the peak in prices. Output during these two months accounted for slightly over 21 percent of the total for the year. It is noted that there was a definite trend toward greater production of the grades used in the United States market. The dominance of the Davao district was somewhat less pronounced in 1940, this area accounting for only 51 percent of the total output.

Exports of abaca during 1940 were only slightly below the previous year, although there were very marked changes in destinations. Shipments to the United States reached a new high for recent years, gaining 76,000 bales or 19 percent compared with 1939. Exports to Japan also increased very sharply, being 111,000 bales or nearly 39 percent greater than in 1939. Official figures show a drop of some 52,000 bales or 13 percent in shipments to the United Kingdom, but actually the decline was somewhat less, since there were fairly substantial shipments to India, Ceylon and various other destinations which were destined for eventual transhipment to the United Kingdom. Shipments to Europe naturally declined very sharply, the total showing a drop of 183,000 bales or 78 percent compared with 1939.

Stocks were generally very high during the earlier months of 1940 but declined very sharply in June and continued at a rather low level during the remainder of the year, the figure for December 31, 1940, showing a drop of some 42,000 bales or 20 percent compared with the corresponding date of last year.

The principal statistics for the years 1939 and 1940 are summarized below (in thousand bales):

	1939	1940
Balings	1,418	1,362
Exports—Total	1,405	1,403
United States	394	470
United Kingdom	384	332
Europe	234	51
Japan	286	397
Stocks, end period	207	165
Average prices, F and J-2, per picul	₱9.00	₱7.62

It should be noted that the foregoing figures include decorticated abaca. The figures have been taken from official sources, with the exception of those for stocks, which were taken from the reports of the Manila Chamber of Commerce.

Exports of cordage during 1940 amounted to 8,883,561 kilos, showing a decline of 703,298 kilos compared with 1939. This decline may be attributed to war conditions. Shipments to the United States during 1940 were officially reported as 3,270,208 kilos, which is a gain of 239,870 kilos or nearly eight percent compared with the prevoius year.

Balings of maguey during 1940 amounted to 23,359 bales, with exports durnig the year of 34,251 bales and stocks on December 31, 1940, of 8,125 bales. Figures for other minor fibers show balings of 6,150 bales of canton and 526 bales of sisal. Exports of canton for the year totaled 7,229 bales, while at the end of the year there were stocks of 707 bales of canton, 657 bales of sisal and 141 bales of pacol.

The National Abaca and Other Fibers Corporation was organized on November 9, 1939, in accordance with Commonwealth Act No. 518 of May 7, 1938. The corporation has an authorized capitalization of ₱20,000,000, but commenced operations with an initial capital of ₱2,500,000. The purposes of the corporation are: (1) to establish a permanent balanced production of abaca and other fibers: (2) to control speculation and stabilize prices at a fair level; (3) to regulate supply and distribution. To accomplish these purposes, the corporation was granted authority to: (1) buy, sell, export, barter and deal in abaca and other fibers; (2) own and operate transportation and warehousing facilities, and processing and manufacturing equipment; (3) act as agents, brokers and commission merchants; (4) grant loans to producers; (5) borrow and issue bonds or otherwise raise funds; and (6) establish foreign offices. The corporation set up an operating budget, expenses of which were estimated at ₱200,000 annually. Actual expenses of the corporation amounted to approximately ₱77,000 in 1940. This excludes advances to cooperative producers' associations aggregating about ₱300,000. During the year, the corporation established purchasing and warehousing agencies in various producing districts and set up baling presses in two districts. Substantial quantities of abaca were purchased and stored and moderate quantities sold.

Outlook for 1941.—The outlook for the abaca industry for 1941 is very uncertain. The prevalence of warfare in many sections of the world is certain to adversely affect sales various markets. Continental Europe, which normally takes about 15 percene of local production may be expected to be largely out of the market during the year, although there are possibilties of some shipments through Asiatic Russia. Great Britain, which accounts for about 21 percent of normal exports, probably will be unable to purchase in full volume. Owing to extremely heavy purchases during the latter part of 1940, stocks in Japan are believed to be quite large, which may cause a reduction in that country's purchases during the coming year. Purchases by the United States during 1940 also were somewhat above normal, but a continuation of heavy purchases for stock or reserve may be anticipated during the coming year. It would appear to be very doubtful whether the United States and Japan can absorb the loss resulting from smaller shipments to other markets, so that present indications are that shipments during the year will be somewhat reduced. On the other hand, the extremely heavy ship-building program in the United States and several other countries should greatly stimulate the consumption of abaca. Another adverse factor is the very high ocean freight and insurance charges. These higher costs may be partially absorbed in consuming markets but certain will tend to depress the local price of abaca to some extent. Another disturbing factor is the recent marked expansion in domestic production, a continuation of which will result in excessive local stocks and consequent low prices.

RICE

Rice is the principal foodstuff and the most important crop in the Philippines, the annual value of production in recent years being somewhat in excess of that for sugar. Production fluctuates very sharply, having ranged during recent years from a low of 42,219,600 cavans of palay (rough rice) in 1936 to a high of 55,015,730 cavans in 1937. (A cavan of palay equals 43 kilos.) Area under cultivation was fairly constant, ranging during the past five years from a low of 1,964,000 hectares in 1939 to a high of 2,060,960 hectares in 1937. Average production during the first years 1935 to 1939 inclusive has been at the rate of 50,000,970 cavans per year. The figures given are for crop years ending with June of the years mentioned.

Production during the 1939-1940 crop year established a new record high of 56,571,000 cavans, which is some 13 percent above the average for the preceding five years. Details concerning the 1940-1941 crop are not yet available, but present indications are that production will be substantially below the previous year. A very severe drought prevailed in the important Central Luzon producing district during the maturing season in the latter part of 1940, with the result that production in that area was very much reduced. However, the crop in Mindanao and other southern producing districts was unusually large, which will partially offset the loss in Central Luzon. It is probable that production for the year will be some 52,000,000-53,000,000 cavans of palay.

The Philippines might be self-sufficient with respect to rice production, but actually is not. The principal difficulties are the lack of irrigation in many important producing districts with consequent wide variations in production as a result of irregular rainfall. It appears that even in good crop years there is a slight shortage of supply which necessitates imports from other nearby producing countries. During the five years 1935 to 1939 inclusive, imports averaged some 53,000 metric tons annually, while there were imports of 38,261 metric tons during 1940, despite the fact that the domestic crop was very large. Imports normally are made principally from Thailand and French Indo-China, with occasional small purchases made from the United States. Of the amounts imported in 1940, 20,046 metric tons came from Thailand, 9,937 metric tons from French Indo-China and 369 tons from the United States.

Production and imports during recent years are summarized in the following table:

Crop Year ended June 30	Production

Methods of distribution of rice are rather unsatisfactory, with returns to producers inadequate, owing to control of marketing by dealers and speculators. Furthermore, prices are subject to very sharp fluctuations, depending on variations in the domestic crop. Some years ago, the Commonwealth Government organized the National Rice and Corn Corporation in order to stabilize the rice market by maintaining a balance between supply and distribution and stabilizing prices at a level that would insure a fair return to the producers and which at the same time would protect consumers. The organization appears to have been quite successful in maintaining prices at a stable and reasonable level. Owing to the chronic shortage of supply, its operations have consisted principally of the purchase and local distribution of foreign rice. The corporation also has bought some quantities of domestic rice and palay.

The rice market during 1940 was influenced by conflicting reports concerning the quantity and quality of the domestic crop. Certain authorities reported that the crop was extremely large while others contended that the actual net yield would be very small owing to damage incurred during the harvesting season. Despite this uncertainty, prices were fairly steady throughout 1940. Monthly average quotations for domestic Macan No. 2 ranged from a low of ₱5.62 per sack of 56½ kilos in June to a high of ₱5.79 per sack in October, the average for the year being ₱5.69 per sack against ₱6.30 per sack in 1939, or a decline of almost ten percent. Palay or rough rice showed a corresponding trend, with a low of ₱2.56 per sack of 44 kilos in July and a high of ₱2.72 per sack in October. The average for the year was ₱2.65 per sack which compares with ₱2.94 per sack for 1939, or a decline of ten percent. Both prices are the lowest since 1937, which was a bumper crop year. It may be noted, however, that rice prices compare favorably with those for other Philpipine crops, all of which were extremely depressed during 1940.

MINING

The mining industry continued to advance during 1940, with gold production again establishing an all-time high and with base metal output increasing very sharply under the stimulus of war demand. The industry has attained a very important place in Philippine economy, ranking third in importance, the value of annual production being only slightly below that of rice and sugar.

Gold and Silver.—Production of gold amounted to ₱78,375,384, gaining ₱4,437,529 or seven percent over 1939, according to preliminary figures based partly on mine assays. Details are as follows:

	1939		1940
	F. Oz.	Pesos	F. Oz.	Pesos
Gold	1,040,625	72,184,491	1,095,939	76,499,481
Silver	1,350,100	1,753,112	1,395,731	1,875,629
Platinum	6	252	6	274
Total	2,390,731	73,937,855	2,491,676	78,375,384

Output per ton milled during 1940 amounted to ₱16.79, whcih is a moderate increase over the figure of ₱16.39 for the previous year. This is an extremely creditable showing in view of the fact that many of the more important producers were operating on secondary ore reserves of lower quality.

During 1940, a total of 42 companies were engaged in regular mining of gold while 15 companies were producing irregularly and eight were inactive. This compares with 23 regular, 23 irregular and two inactive producers during 1939.

Complete details are not available concerning total earnings of gold mining companies for 1940. The best available tabulation indicates that 21 companies paid cash dividends during the year totaling ₱20,156,000. Comparative figures for 1939 show 21 companies with cash dividends of ₱24,120,700. It is apparent that operations of the gold mining companies were somewhat less profitable during 1940, owing probably to higher cost of materials and increased taxes and other operating charges. Both figures include dividends paid by mine management companies.

Base Metals.—Production of base metals increased very sharply during 1940, under the stimulus of war demand. Production of the principal base metals has been as follows:

		1939		1940
	Unit	Quantity	Pesos	Quantity	Pesos
Chromite	L. Tons	130,969	2,150,651	189,919	2,518,375

Lead	"	88,901	6,781	1,422,471	78,029
Total			10,837,530		12,994,222

During 1940, 17 companies were actively engaged in the mining of base metals, which is a considerable decline from the figure of 22 companies for the previous year. Complete figures concerning earnings are not available, but during 1940 four companies declared cash dividends aggregating ₱1,231,000, which compares very favorably with dividends of ₱639,535 by four companies during the previous year.

Outlook for 1941.—It is believed that gold production has reached its peak and probably will continue to be fairly stable for several years at the level of about ₱80,000,000 per year. There are no extensive new developments under consideration and there is very little inducement for new projects owing to the existing mining laws which provide for Government leases at indefinite rates. A large number of the more important mines have reached their peak of productivity and in the future must show a declining yield, as lower grade ores are developed. Operating costs have increased very materially and are expected to advance even more owing to the advancing cost of supplies and the upward trend of labor, transportation, taxes and other charges. Under these conditions, operations of the gold mining industry will probably be somewhat less profitable during the coming year, although there should be no difficulty in attaining a production of approximately ₱80,000,000.

Potentially, there is an excellent demand for Philippine base metals. The United States national defense and war reserve programs should absorb very substantial quantities of most of the more important metals during the coming year. Unfortunately, the industry is faced with increasing shipping scarcity and high and steadily advancing ocean freight rates. This already is affecting distribution and if these conditions continue, it will be impossible to ship in full volume. If the shipping problem can be solved, 1941 should be a banner year for the Philippine base metal industry. If not, production probably will fall below 1940.

TOBACCO

Tobacco is one of the important Philippine crops while the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes is a leading domestic industry. Tobacco is grown to some extent in many sections of the Islands, but the leading producing districts are the provinces of Cagayan, Isabela and Pangasinan, in northern Luzon. This area normally accounts for 55 to 60 percent of total production. Production during recent years has ranged from a minimum of 622,660 quintals (1 quintal equals 46 kilos) in the crop year ended with June 1935 to a maximum of 781,382 quintals in 1938. Area under cultivation ranged from 61,520 hectares (1935) to 74,796 hectares (1938). The average for the five crop years 1935 to 1939 inclusive is 712,635 quintals from 69,167 hectares. Complete details concerning production during the 1939-1940 crop year are not available, but the Bureau of the Census and Statistics has supplied a preliminary estimate. This places the area under cultivation at 72,000 hectares, with production totaling 34,406,000 kilos (747,956 quintals). Compared with the average for the preceding five years, there were gains of 4.3 percent and 5.2 percent in acreage and production respectively. The quality of the crop was reported to be very good in the important Cagayan and Isabela districts but only fair in other areas.

The change in Government statistics from the calendar year to a fiscal year ending with June makes it impossible to supply complete 1940 figures for production of cigars and cigarettes. Production during the fiscal year ended with June 1940 totaled 329,064,201 cigars and 3,275,378,000 cigarettes. This compares with 322,796,914 cigars and 3,379,932,000 cigarettes produced during the calendar year 1939.

Exports of leaf, scrap and filler tobacco during 1940 amounted to 2,081,629 kilos to the United States and 10,722,098 kilos to other countries, according to unofficial statistics. Shipments to the United States fell nearly 70 percent below 1939, this being caused by the imposition of a quota of 4,500,000 pounds for the year. Exports to other countries also declined 13 percent, this being attributed to reduced purchases of various European countries as a result of the war. Shipments to Spain, the leading market, were only a little smaller than in 1939.

Cigar exports during 1940 are reported as 210,285,096 to the United States and 14,560,931 to other countries. The figure for the United States is a high for recent years and compares with a total of 196,481,233 in 1939. During 1940, shipments to the United States were on a quota basis which limited duty-free entry into the United States to 200,000,000 cigars during the calendar year. The quota is on an arrival basis and compares roughly with shipments from the Philippines during the twelve months ended with November 1940. Shipments during this period amounted to 198,581,561 cigars, indicating that the quota was filled.

An important development during 1940 was the passage of a law (Commonwealth Act No. 519 of May 17, 1940) providing for the organization of a National Tobacco Corporation. This law was designed to rehabilitate and stabilize the Philippine tobacco industry. The corporation was duly organized on July 20, 1940, and was granted very extensive powers, including the right to purchase, sell, import, export, transport and store tobacco and manufactures; to extend credit facilities to tobacco planters; and to act as agents, brokers or commission merchants. The activities of the corporation were largely exploratory during 1940, but it may become a very important factor in the industry during the coming year.

Outlook for 1941.—The outlook for the tobacco industry for 1941 is rather unfavorable. Quotas for shipment to the United States will be reduced by five percent to 190,000,000 cigars and 4,275,000 pounds of scrap and filler tobacco. Since both of these figures are below actual shipments during either of the past two years, the local tobacco industry probably will be adversely affected. Ordinarily, substantial quantities of cigars and of scrap and filler tobacco are shipped to various European countries and such shipments are certain to be reduced during 1941, owing to war conditions. Spain, the leading market, may find it impossible to purchase in full volume while Japan, another important market, probably will curtail its buying during the year. Other adverse influences are the certainty of higher ocean freight and other transportation charges and a possible reduction in domestic consumption owing to reduced purchasing power.

LUMBER AND TIMBER

The lumber and timber industry was subjected to a number of unusual factors during 1940, from which it finally emerged in a favorable position. Monthly statistics of the industry, i.e., production, exports, deliveries and inventories, indicate a constant effort of the industry to readjust itself to changing conditions. As in most other local industries, the primary factor upsetting the lumber and timber industry was the European war, which factor in the end accounted for the recovery of the industry and placed the year's business on a favorable plane with previous years. Low commodity prices and general unsettled conditions tended to decrease local consumption of lumber produtcs.

The year 1940 opened with surpluses in the industry which resulted in the leading producers agreeing to limit their production. The withdrawal of two producers during that period also lowered production. Shortly after the beginning of the year, production was brought into line with demand, which was largely for export. Domestic consumption was low during the very early part of the year but increased in March, April and May. The export demand continued throughout the year and although individual months fluctuated widely during the year, final export figures show increases in exports to most countries.

At the end of the year, there were 151 sawmills and 12 machine logging operations without sawmills with a total capital of ₱30,581,840, compared with 147 sawmills and 11 machine logging operations without sawmills capitalized at ₱30,658,556 at the end of 1939. Incomplete figures for 1940 show that a total of 947,171,459 board feet of lumber and timber was cut from public forests during the year, which compares with 1,097,366,111 board feet for 1939. Official figures show that total production for the year 1940 amounted to 244,638,801 board feet, compared with 266,392,725 board feet for 1939. Domestic consumption of sawn lumber based on the period from 1936 to 1939 averaged 274,924,715 board feet annually.

Exports of logs and timber amounted to 131,219,571 board feet in 1940 as against 159,151,792 board feet in 1939. Exports of sawn lumber in 1940. A total of 26,436,229 board feet was with 44,018,832 board feet in 1939. The decline in log and timber exports was due to greater control measures adopted by the Japanese Government over the importation of logs in Japan. However, shipments of unsawn timber to Japan constituted 68 percent of total log and timber exports of the Philippines during 1940. China ranked second to Japan in the importation of unsawn timber from the Philippines, shipments to the former being 30,527,654 board feet during 1940 as against 89,429,310 board feet shipped to the latter. As long as the Sino-Japanese conflict continues, there is no bright prospect for Philippine timber exports, in view of the fact that Japan and China are the only active markets for this product.

Exports of sawn lumber to the United Kingdom amounted to 16,918,121 board feet during 1940 as against 6,589,384 board feet in the previous year, or a substantial increase of 10,328,737 board feet or 157 percent. Demand for sawn lumber in the United States improved during 1940. A total of 26,436,229 board feet was shipped to this market during the year, compared with 22,905,752 board feet in the previous year, or an increase of 3,530,477 board feet or 15 percent. If adequate bottoms become available, exports of sawn lumber to the United States may have bright prospects.

Shipments by countries during 1939 and 1940, according to official trade figures, were as follows (in board feet):

Outlook for 1941.—Due to unsettled international conditions, very little can be said about the possibility of the industry during 1941. There will probably be a curtailment in private construction. It is believed that imports of wood products will decrease during the year, as commodity prices in the Philippines may show little or no improvement. The export market will probably continue to improve. In that regard, the question of available bottoms to make shipments and increased freight and insurance rates will doubtlessly lower the income of the Philippines from such trade.

FOREIGN TRADE

Before proceeding with the discussion of Philippine foreign trade statistics, it is necessary to outline the method used by the Commonwealth Government in compiling these statistics and to explain the various changes which have been affected in the method of compilation during the past year.

Beginning with January 1940, import statistics have been reported on the basis of arrivals of merchandise, displacing the former method of reporting on the basis of liquidation of custom entries. By liquidation, it is meant that an article is considered to be officially imported only after customs entries and all other formalities have been completed. Since a period of up to twentyfour months is authorized for liquidation of customs entries and the usual time between actual arrival and liquidation of from four to six months, it is evident that the liquidation figurse bear little direct relation to actual arrivals during any given period.

It is obvious that the change in method of compilation makes comparison of 1940 figures with those for previous years extremely inexact and misleading. For example, imports of specified commodities may show an increase where the reverse is actually true. Equally, the figures may show a decline whereas arrivals may have actually increased. Perhaps, a few examples will help to make this clear.

The official trade figures show a total of 4,741 motor vehicles imported during 1940 gaainst 3,884 during 1939. A census of dealers shows that actual imports during 1940 totaled 5,252 vehicles against 6,003 vehicles actually imported during the previous year. The official figure shows an increase in 1940 or 857 vehicles, whereas on an actual arrivel basis there was a decline during the year of 751 vehicles. Similarly, the official figures show that flour imports of 102,085 metric otns during 1940 against 100,264 metric tons during the previous year, whereas actual arrivals based on unofficial statistics amounted to 4,887,000 sacks during 1940 against 6,050,000 sacks in 1939. The official figure shows a gain of nearly two percent whereas actual arrivals fell 19 percent.

On making the chance from a liquidation to an arrival basis, no provision was made for the listing of merchandise which had been previously imported but not liquidated. In consequence, a total of nearly 80,000 customs entries have been dropped from the trade figuers in this manner, possibly reperesenting imports to the value of at least ₱50,000.000.

Beginning with July 1, 1940, the compilation of trade statistics was taken over by the Bureau of the Census and Statistics, whereas they had previously been compiled by the Bureau of Customs. The Bureau of the Census and Statistics effected numerous changes in classifications and in methods of reporting. The necessary adjustments have been made by this Bureau in the figures for the year 1939 as reported here, but comparison with years prior to 1939 is impossible. Furthermore, most of the 1939 figures will not agree with those published in our report for last year, since these were secured from the Bureau of Customs.

Finally, exports of gold and silver have been listed as a regular commodity beginning with 1940, displacing the former system of reporting such shipments separately. This is a proper change since exports of gold and silver from the Philippines consist almost exclusively of newly mined metals, shipments of specie being negligible. The necessary adjustments have been made in this report in the figures for earlier years, but it must be pointed out that these figures will not agree with earlier reports from this office.

GENERAL

Philippine foreign trade in 1940 was affected by war conditions which caused marked changes in the character and direction of trade. Despite war difficulties, the total trade for the year amounted to ₱581,311,589 in 1940, an increase of 3.6 percent over last year's figure of ₱560,914,120, and 26.6 percent greater than the average for the last ten years (1930 to 1939) of ₱459,108,130. The 1940 figure is the highest on record since the peak in 1939, when the total was ₱629,847,669. The only two other years better than 1940 were 1920, when the figure was

Hosted by Google

₱603,468,162, and 1928, when it amounted to ₱583,175,156.

The small increse in 1940 was due entirely to imports which were up 9.9 percent, exports having declined by 1.3 percent. Imports have been increasing steadily since 1933, the 1930-1939 average amounting to only ₱200,715,347. Exports have shown a similar tendency, due no doubt in a large measure to the increasing importance of gold and silver as an export commodity, particularly noticeable after the increase in the price of gold. The average of exports for the past ten years is ₱258,392,783.

TRADE BY COUNTRIES

The biggest bulk of Philippine overseas trade is with the United States and possessions, accounting for 80.6 percent of the total in 1940, compared with 76 percent in 1939 and 74.9 percent during the 1930-1939 period Europe's share was only 5.2 percent in 1940 on account of the war, compared to 10.4 percent in 1939 and 10.5 percent during the ten-year period. Asia and Oceania accounted for 12.7 percent in 1940, compared to 11.9 percent in 1939 and 13.6 percent during the past ten years.

The Philippine has been very fortunate in finding a ready market for its export commodities in the United States. This merchandise trade has always favored the Philippines with an export balance, which has been maintained continuously since 1921. The favorable balance of total merchandise trade has always been due entirely to trade with the United States, since trade with all other areas has consistently resulted in an import balance, partly reducing the export balance with the United States. Asia and Oceania has always been responsible for the largest portion of the unfavorable balance of merchandise trade, more particularly commerce with Japan, the Philippines' second best market. Japan for the first time last year favored the Philippines with an export balance and this figure has increased considerably in 1940. Europe, on the other hand, has managed to favor the Philippines now and then with a small export balance, although the 1940 figure was particularly large due to the big drop in imports from the countries directly affected by the war.

Details of total trade by countries are given below:

IMPORT TRADE

Philippine imports in 1940 amounted to ₱269,687,627, the highest figure since the peak attained in 1929. This represents a 10 percent over last year's figure of ₱245,129,974. It is believed that on a quantity basis, there was some decline in actual arrivals of imported merchandise during 1940. Allowing for the differences arising from the change in reporting imports to an arrival from a liquidation basis, it is certain that quantities of the leading import items were substantially smaller during 1940. For example, on a quantity basis, there were declines of 24 percent in cotton textiles; 19 percent in wheat flour; 14 percent in motor vehicles; and 30 percent in sardines and pilchards. The much higher prices prevailing during 1940 naturally tended to increase imports on a value basis, this increase being represented partly by higher first costs and partly by much higher transportation and insurance charges. Making full allowance for all factors, it may be estimated roughly that actual arrivals showed a quantitative decline of approximately 10 percent during 1940.

An analysis of imports by principal divisions showed increases in all classifications, with the exception of Vegetable Food Products and Beverages, and Miscellaneous, with showed fractional decreases from last year. The heaviest peso increases were in Non-Metalic Minerals, up 26 percent; Metals and Manufactures, up 20 percent; Chemicals and Related Products, up 29 percent; and Inedible Plant Products, up 17 percent.

EXPORT TRADE

Exports of Philippine merchandise, including gold and silver (but not including re-exports of merchandise previously imported) were valued at ₱305,320,153 in 1940, a drop of ₱8,264,810 or 2.6 percent from the 1939 figure of ₱313,584,963. There is very little doubt that on a quantity basis, 1940 exports were greater than in 1939, with nearly all important commodities showing quantity increases over last year, with the exception of a few items like peanuts, desiccated coconut, copra, copra cake and meal, leaf tobacco, scrap and filler tobacco and logs and timber. According to the Associated Steamship Lines, the tonnage of exports cargoes in 1940 showed an increase of 19 percent over 1939.

The value of exports of Vegetable Products and Preparations (not including "Fibers and Manufactures"), the largest and most important group classification of domestic exports, declined some nine percent from the previous year and made up only 53.4 percent of total domestic exports as compared with 57.3 percent in 1939. The drop of nearly ₱16,650,000 in this classification is due to a drop of five percent in sugar and related products, 16 percent in coconut products and 29 percent in tobacco products, which were partly offset by increases in minor products, namely, 43 percent in fruits and preparations and 159 percent in rubber and manufactures.

The inclusion of gold and silver exports as a regular commodity increased the importance of the Mineral Products group which now occupies second place. This classification showed an increase of eight percent and made up 30.2 percent of total domestic exports in 1940, compared with only 27.2 percent in 1939. The biggest increase was in the base metal group, which was probably accelerated by demands of war industries, while gold and silver exports also increased by six percent. Exports of other metals and minerals also showed a moderate increase over last year.

The third important classification, Fibers and Manufactures, showed a two percent increase over last year and made up 13 percent of total domestic exports, compared with 12.4 percent in 1939. The biggest single item in this group is abaca and manufactures which increased by seven percent, while embroideries, the next important group, showed a decline of 14 percent. All other fiber exports, taken as a whole, showed a substantial increase over last year, particularly ramie fiber which is showing indications of becoming an important export commodity.

The last group, Miscellaneous, is composed of all other items not included in the three classifications above. This showed an increase of six percent over 1939 and made up 3.4 percent of total domestic exports, compared with 3.1 percent in 1939. The largest single item in this group is wood and manufactures, which showed an increase of 12 percent over last year. Other important items are canned tuna, hides and skins, pearl buttons and rattan furniture.

There has been no change in arrangement except in the case of tobacco products and base metals in which their positions were reversed, the latter obtaining priority position over tobacco products. The reason for the increase in exports of base metals was the accelerated demand occasioned by war, while the decline in tobacco products is probably due to a lack of export markets, Spain and the United States being the only two important markets in 1940.

Peanuts occupied tenth place in 1939, but rubber and manufactures took this place in 1940, exports of crude rubber being nearly double last year's, while exports of canvas rubber-soled shoes were more than ten times the 1939 figure.

Of the ten principal exports, the United States took 83 percent in 1939, whereas in 1940, her purchases amounted to 85 percent of the total, indicating increasing reliance on the United States market.

Sugar and Related Products.—Sugar has for the past several years always occupied premier position as an export commodity. With the allocation of quotas by the United States, which is our only market for this item, exports have remained practically stationary from year to year, although, of course, actual shipments will show some changes. This is true of 1940, when exports of centrifugal sugar showed an increase of 12 percent in quantity over 1939, although values registered a decline of five percent. Exports of refined sugar increased somewhat although values were a shade lower. The other items under this group are molasses and candies, exports of the former declining from 16,355,424 kilos valued at ₱155,766 in 1939 to 1,596,840 kilos valued at ₱27,875 in 1940. Candies were exported to the value of ₱16,169 in 1939, compared with ₱17,836 in 1940.

Gold and Silver.—With the increase in the number of Philippine producing mines and increased production of old mines, apparently attracted by the high price of gold in addition to being unaffected by general business depression in that there is always a buyer for it, gold and silver exports have increased considerably in the past few years and now occupy second honors. The principal item is gold, silver being only a by-product. Gold is exported mostly in the form of bullion, although new classifications were included in 1940. In 1939, 1,040,454 fine ounces of gold were exported, compared with 916,557 fine ounces in 1940. This year, 150,951 fine ounces were reported in the form of concentrates and 13,222 was said to be from lead bullion. Small quantities of ore were also exported in both years. Silver from gold bullion was exported to the amount of 1,360,762 fine ounces in 1939, compared with 858,838 fine ounces in 1940. Another important source in 1940 was gold concentrates which accounted for 473,162 fine ounces.

Coconut Products.—This is the Philippines' third largest item of export and the principal commodities under this heading, in the order of importance, are coconut oil (edible and inedible), copra, desiccated or shredded coconut, copra cake and meal, vegetable butter and lard and coconut shell charcoal.

Exports of desiccated coconut declined some three percent in quantity although values were nearly 18 percent under 1939. Nearly all of this item went to the United States. Inedible coconut oil increased by eight percent in quantity but values were only three percent greater than in 1939. Shipments to the United States increased slightly over the previous year, while exports to Canada, Sweden, Italy and France showed considerable increases. Exports of edible coconut oil showed a very substantial increase over last year, with Hong Kong, as in the previous year, taking most of the shipments. Malaya and China also took large quantities in 1940.

Copra is the biggest item in this group. Exports, however, declined considerably, being 15 percent below 1939 in quantity. The drop in value was more abrupt, being 30 percent below last year. As usual, the United States obtained the largest portion of the copra exports. Russia became a market for the first time in several years, and exports in 1940 represent shipments made during the last quarter of the year. Other new markets were Great Britain and Spanish Africa, although Germany and the Netherlands did not make any purchases in 1940 on account of the war. Shipments to Sweden, Denmark and Mexico declined very considerably during the year, in the case of the first two due also to the political situation.

The war practically closed the European market for copra cake, shipments of which declined eight percent in quantity, while value was nearly halved, being only 64 percent of the 1939 value. Exports of copra meal to the United States were nearly doubled although value increased by only 21 percent. There were no shipments of copra cake to Germany and the Netherlands, while Denmark and Sweden took only small quantities in 1940.

There was a small drop in exports of vegetable butter, while vegetable lard showed a small increase over last year. A large part of the shipments to the United States probably represented shipments to territories, notably Puerto Rico.

The war revived world interest in coconut shell charcoal and exports of this item increased over 400 percent. The United States took most of our exports in 1940, although Great Britain and France also accounted for substantial quantities.

Abaca and Manufactures.—Exports of abaca (Manila Hemp) were only a shade higher than last year although values were seven percent higher. As usual, the three largest markets for this product were the United States, Great Britain and Japan, although in 1940 Japan took more than Great Britain. India, not heretofore a market for abaca, ranked fourth in 1940, while exports to other European markets were very adversely affected by the war.

Manila rope exports increased some eight percent in quantity and nine percent in value in 1940. The United States purchased larger quantities in 1940, as did the Netherlands Indies, Malaya and China.

One important item which was relegated to a minor position in 1940 is knotted abaca, due to the fact that the largest buyer of this item is Italy. Exports declined from 70,010 kilos valued at ₱137,363 in 1939 to only 13,912 kilos valued at ₱25,943 in 1940.

Base Metals.—This classification jumped from sixth place in 1939 to fifth place in 1940 since demand for the items under this classification has been greatly accelerated by demands of war industries.

Exports of chrome ore were 53 percent greater than in 1939 in quantity, while value was 80 percent greater. The United States got most of the exports, although Japan also purchased increased quantities in 1940. There was a decline of 38 percent in the quantity of copper concentrates exported in 1940, although value was up nine percent. Japan continued to be the biggest buyer of this item, with the United States ranking second. Iron ore shipments increased in 1940, all of which went to Japan. Manganese ore exports showed a very marked increase, quantity being 61 percent greater while value was nearly double last year's. The United States obtained most of the exports in 1940, Japan's purchases declining considerably during the year.

Tobacco Products.—Exports of tobacco products dropped to sixth place in 1940, due to reduced takings by the United States and to lack of other markets, Spain being the only country buying large quantities in 1940.

Leaf Tobacco exports declined considerably, quantity being 26 percent under 1939, while value was trimmed down to less than half. Exports to the United States were greatly reduced in 1940, while shipments to the Netherlands, the largest market in 1939, was reduced to practically nil in 1940. With the settlement of the civil war in Spain, that country again became the largest market for Philippine leaf tobacco, taking nearly 88 percent of the total quantity exported in 1940.

There was a small decline in the number of cigars exported in 1940, although value was a shade higher. As usual, the United States constituted the greatest market, although Spain showed a very great increase in her purchases in 1940. Exports of cigarettes increased appreciably in 1940, with Spain as the largest purchaser.

Embroideries.—Embroideries ranked seventh as an export group, although strictly speaking, the value of exports should be reduced by the value of cloth used, since all the materials are imported into the Philippines and only labor is added here. Most of the shipments consists of cotton embroideries, atlhough some silk embroideries are also exported. The only market is the United States.

Wood and Manufactures.—This is represented by logs and hewn timber and lumber, although there is a small quantity of furniture and plywood exported. Exports of logs and timber declined by nearly 18 percent in quantity, while value was down eight percent. The largest market for this item is Japan, but her purchases in 1940 dropped 25 percent from 1939, due probably to difficulties in obtaining foreign exchange. Exports to the United States were practically doubled, while Korea also took large quantities. Incidentally, there were no exports to Kwantung in 1940, this probably being supplied from Korea. A new market was added in 1940, Iraq, which took fairly substantial quantities during the year. Lumber exports showed an entirely opposite trend, quantity increasing by 33 percent while value was increased by an equal percentage. The United States continued to be the largest buyer, although Great Britain and British Africa took considerably larger quantities than in 1939.

Fruits and Preparations.—This item is made up mainly of canned pineapple, exports of which increased 32 percent in quantity and 46 percent in value. Practically all of this went to the United States. Fresh mangoes are also exported in fairly large quantities, most of which goes to Hong Kong and China.

Rubber and Manufactures.—Peanut exports, which ranked tenth in 1939, was replaced in 1940 by rubber and manufactures, exports of which increased by 159 percent in 1940. This is made up mostly of crude rubber in which 1939 exports were nearly doubled in 1940. Another very remarkable increase was made in canvas rubber-soled shoes, exports of which were up 1,481 percent in 1940. Neraly all of the exports of rubber and manufactures went to the United States.

RE-EXPORTS

Due probably to disruption of shipping facilities on account of the war and to some other factors, the Philippines is showing signs of becoming a transhipment point, as hown by the fact that re-exports in 1939 amounted to only ₱2,199,183, as compared with ₱6,528,894 in 1940, on increase of 197 percent. The increase was very evident in the last half of 1940, when shipments totaled ₱4,799,566, as compared with ₱1,729,328 in the first six months of the year.

Details of the most important commodities re-exported from the Philippines in 1939 and 1940 are as follows:

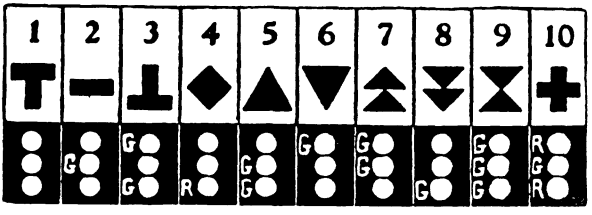
Typhoon Signals

System Adopted by Hongkong and the Philippines, Effective After February 28, 1935



FIRST SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black T—Night symbol, three lights, white, white, white.

Meaning.—This signal may signify:

(a) Indications of a distant typhoon, the direction of whose movement is still unknown. The signal will be changed in case the typhoon becomes more threatening.

(b) Typhoon whose direction or distance is at present such, that it may pass off without seriously affecting the Archipelago.

(c) Depression of little importance, though it may develop later into a typhoon.

Use.—Frequently used in the Philippines; seldom, if ever, in Hongkong.

Relation to the old system.—It is the same as the old signal No. 1.

Precautions.—Vessels prepare to strengthen their moorings. Steamers prepare to light the fires. Small vessels, especially open launches, should not risk far from the coast, port, or steamers.

SECOND SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black horizontal bar—Night symbol, three lights, white, green, white.

Meaning.—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing to the north (northeast or north or northwest) at a considerable distance. Strong winds from the southwest quadrant (west to south), which may acquire considerable force and continue for several days.

Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.

Relation to the old system.—It is the same as the old signal No. 2.

Precautions.—Vessels strengthen their moorings and send down light yards and masts. Steamers light the fires and be ready to use engines on short notice. Dangerous for small vessels to be under way.

Hosted by Google

THIRD SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black inverted T—Night symbol, three lights, green, white, green.
Meaning.—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing to the south at a considerable distance. Strong winds from the east quadrant (northeast to southeast), which may acquire considerable force.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It is the same as the old signal No. 3.
Precautions.—The same as for second signal.

FOURTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black diamond—Night symbol, three lights, white, white, red.
Meaning.—Typhoon dangerous, though the danger is not yet imminent. Look out for the next signal.
Use.—Used in the Philippines as a transitional signal; seldom, if ever, used in Hongkong.
Relation to the old system.—It is the same as the old signal No. 4.
Precautions.—Vessels strengthen their moorings as much as possible, and send down topsail yards and topmasts. Lower and secure all gear. Steamers must be ready to use engines in case of an emergency. Small vessels remain at their moorings.

FIFTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, black cone point upward—Night symbol, three lights, white, green, green.
Meaning.—Winds of gale force expected from the northwest (from north to west).
Use.—Used in Hongkong, but seldom, if ever, in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It is a new signal.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Use steam to assist the anchors if necessary. No vessels under way while this signal is up.

SIXTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black cones point downward—Night symbol, three lights, green, white, white.
Meaning.—Gale expected from the SW (west to south)—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing to the north at a short distance. Strong gales from the northwest and especially from the southwest quadrants (north over west to south), which may reach hurricane force. In rare cases of typhoons coming from the China Sea and moving northeastward, the winds will veer from southeast over west to northwest.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It corresponds to signal No. 5 in the old system.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Use steam to assist the anchors if necessary. No vessels under way while this signal is up.

SEVENTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, two cones point upward—Night symbol, three lights, green, green, white.
Meaning.—Winds of gale force may be expected from the northeast (from north to east).
Use.—Used in Hongkong; seldom, if ever, in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It is a new signal.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Use steam to assist the anchors if necessary. No vessels under way while this signal is up.

EIGHTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, two cones point downward—Night symbol, three lights, white, white, green.
Meaning.—Gale expected from the southeast (east to south)—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing to the south at a short distance. Strong gales from the northeast and especially from the southeast quadrants (north over east to south), which may reach hurricane force. In rare cases of typhoons coming from the China Sea and moving northeastward, the winds will back from southeast over east to north.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It corresponds to signal No. 6 in the old system.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Use steam to assist the anchors if necessary. No vessels under way while this signal is up.

NINTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, black hour-glass—Night symbol, three lights, green, green, green.
Meaning.—Gale is expected to increase.
Use.—Used in Hongkong only.
Relation to the old system.—It is a new signal.

TENTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black cross—Night symbol, three lights, red, green, red.
Meaning.—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing over or very near the place. It must be remembered that if the real center of the typhoon passes over the place, then after the absolute or relative lull, due to the actual passing of the center, the winds will suddenly change to a direction opposite the one from which they came before the calm; also that they may be fiercer than before.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It corresponds to signal No. 7 in the old system.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Vessels must not enter the rivers or sail from them while this signal is up; it is forbidden also to move about in bancas or cascos.

REMARKS.—1. The above typhoon signals are hoisted in accordance with advices from the Weather Bureau. Their meaning is the same wherever they are shown in the Archipelago.

2. While the precautions indicated above to be taken on board ships must to some degree be left to the judgment of the masters thereof, all masters of vessels are required to notify the collector of customs or the harbormaster if, while typhoon signals are displayed, any vessel fails to take suitable precautions for its safety, thus endangering other ships. (See Paragraph 181 of Customs Marine Circular No. 53, issued on January 1, 1913.)

3. The precautions to be taken on land can be inferred from those indicated for vessels. Secure movable or loosely fastened objects which present large surfaces to the wind. Doors and windows should be securely closed. Buildings of light materials should be braced on the sides opposite to the direction from which the wind blows, and the braces should be shifted according to the shifting of the wind, the latter especially when signal No. 10 is hoisted.

PILOTAGE REGULATIONS AND FEES

(Customs Administrative-Order No. 304)

Paragraph I. By authority of section 551 and in pursuance of section 1415 of the Administrative Code of the Philippine Islands of 1917, the following special regulations and fee schedules for pilotage in the Philippine Islands are hereby promulgated to take effect on February 1, 1934.

Par. II. The employment of a pilot for coastwise service in Philippine waters outside of pilotage districts or between pilotage districts shall be optional, but when requested and rendered the pilot performing the same shall receive as compensation therefor not to exceed thirty pesos (₱30.00) per day and expenses until his return to station by first available transportation, subject to private contract in each case.

Par. III. Any vessel employing a coastwise pilot between pilotage districts shall pay the prescribed compulsory or optional pilotage fee to the pilot's association within whose jurisdictional waters any part of said service may be rendered and any vessel employing a district pilot from one pilotage district to another, in addition to the compensation provided for in paragraph II, shall pay to the association in the district in which said vessel is piloted the compulsory pilotage or berthing fee of said district.

Par. IV. Any vessel employing a district pilot from one pilotage district to another, in addition to the compensation provided for in paragraph II hereof, shall pay to the association in the district to which such vessel is piloted. the compulsory pilotage fee provided for said district.

Par. V. When a pilot is kept on board a vessel thru quarantine or other causes beyond his control, he shall be entitled to subsistence and to pay at the rate or eight pesos (₱8.00) per day: Provided, That all time less than twenty-four (24) hours and over six (6) hours shall be counted as one day.

Par. VI. When pilotage service is rendered at any port between sunset and 5:00 a. m., an additional charge of 50% over the regular pilotage fees shall be paid. This additional charge or overtime fee shall likewise be paid when pilotage service is commenced before and finished after sunset or commenced before and finished after 5:00 a. m.

Par. VII. Public vessels and those in the service of the Federal or Insular Government; also tugs, lorchas, launches, and other vessels engaged solely in river or harbor work, shall be exempt from the compulsory pilotage provisions of these regulations; but when a pilot's service is requested and rendered, such vessels shall pay the fees specified for other vessels.

Par. VIII. The pilotage fees hereinafter authorized to be collected for and on account of the respective pilot's associations, in the manner and at the rates prescribed, shall be known as "Entrance and Clearance Fees," "Berthing", Fees "Unmooring Fees" and "Shifting Fees"; Provided, that when shifting is ordered by customs or other port authority, pilotage for such change of berth shall be rendered free of charge.

Par. IX. All pilotage fees provided for herein are stated in the currency of the Philippine Islands and shall be paid in that currency or its equivalent.

MANILA PILOT'S ASSOCIATION

Par. X. The Pilot's Association at the Port of Manila, subject to the provisions of paragraph II of Customs Administrative Order No. 115, shall consist of seven pilots, one of whom shall be known as the chief pilot, who shall have general supervision over the Manila Pilot's Association and its operations and receive as compensation for such extra services one hundred (₱100.00) pesos per month, which amount shall be considered as a current expense of the association, to be deducted, with other expenses, from the gross receipts prior to the division of the net earnings amongst the members thereof.

Par. XI. All fees herein prescribed for the Manila pilotage district shall be collected by, and paid to the Treasurer of the Manila Pilot's Association not later than the last day of the month during which the pilotage services are rendered. No clearance shall be granted to any vessel on account of which said fees are payable, unless payment has been made or guaranteed in a manner satisfactory to the Insular Collector of Customs.

Par. XII. Upon presentation of properly certified vouchers covering the expenses of the Association, payment shall be made for same from cash on hand; and the net receipts shall be equally divided among, and paid to, the members of the Association monthly by the Chief Pilot.

Par. XIII. At the close of each month, and at the end of each calendar year, the Manila Pilot's Association shall render to the Insular Collector of Customs reports in accordance with the provisions of Customs Marine Circular No. 97, dated November 30, 1915, the said reports to be made out on the forms prescribed and provided by the Bureau of Customs.

FEES

Par. XIV. The following fees shall be paid to and on account of the Manila Pilot's Association, subject to the provisions and in the manner hereinafter prescribed:

DOCKING OR LEAVING PIERS

Par. XV. Pilotage shall be compulsory for foreign vessels of five hundred gross tons or over docking at or leaving any Insular Government Pier and the following fees shall be paid:

Vessels under 1,000 tons net	₱18.90 each
Vessels of 1,000 to 3,000 tons net	31.50 each
Vessels over 3,000 tons net	47.25 each

However, pilotage shall be optional for any vessel anchoring or leaving an anchorage behind the breakwater, but should pilotage services be requested and rendered, the following fees shall be paid:

Vessels under 1,000 tons net ..... ₱12.60 each
Vessels of 1,000 to 3,000 tons net	18.90 each
Vessels over 3,000 tons net	25.20 each

PILOTAGE, PASIG RIVER

Par. XVI. Pilotage shall be compulsory for vessels of 60 register net tons, or over, entering or clearing from the Pasig River; and such vessels shall be required to pay for said services at the following rates per each three decimeters (one foot) draft upon entrance or clearance:

Vessels under 250 tons, gross register	₱0.60
Of 250 and under 500 tons, gross register	0.75
Of 500 tons, gross register, or over	0.95

SHIFTING IN THE PASIG RIVER

Par. XVII. Pilotage for vessels shifting berth in the Pasig River, when done without letting go all moorings, shall be optional. Pilotage for vessels of 60 register net tons or over, subject to compulsory pilotage upon entrance or clearance, shifting berth or anchorage under steam or by towing, shall be compulsory, and fees therefor shall be paid at the rate of forty centavos (₱0.40) per each three decimeters (one foot) draft: Provided, That vessels exempted from compulsory pilotage by the preceding paragraph shall not be required to take a pilot in shifting berth, but, should pilot's services be requested and rendered, the same rates as for other vessels shall be paid.

Par. XVIII. Any pilotage service not otherwise specifically provided for herein, rendered within the limits of the Manila Pilotage District, shall be optional, but if requested and rendered, shall be performed by a regularly licensed pilot of the Manila Pilot's Association, and a fee of one peso and twenty-five centavos (₱1.25) per each three decimeters (one foot) draft shall be paid therefor.

Tonnage Charges.—Vessels arriving from or sailing for ports outside the territory of the Philippines are charged tonnage dues at the rate of ₱0.125 per net registered ton or ₱.35 per 1,000 kilograms of cargo discharged and or laden in Philippine ports. The rate of charge is optional with the master or consignee. If the tonnage charge is paid on a net registered tonnage basis, same is made only once and at the first Philippine port of entry entered on that voyage.

MARINE DIVISION

IMPORTATION AND EXPORTATION

Imported merchandise are cleared by importers themselves or by customs brokers whose services are contracted by them regularly by means of import entries. Each such entry must be supported by all the shipping documents pertaining to the shipment being cleared. If the value of the merchandise covered thereby is over ₱50.00, a customs stamp to the value of ₱1.00 must be affixed to the import entry. If the importer desires immediate delivery of packages not assigned for examination, he should have on file general importers' bond in the amount of at least ₱3,000.00 and customs stamps to the amount of ₱1.00 and internal revenue stamp of ₱0.50 must also be affixed to the individual bond printed at the back of the form for import entry. If the value of the imports exceeds ₱200.00 and the importer has not received the corresponding consular invoice, he may file the import entry by filing bond for the production of said invoice in accordance with the provisions of Section 1270 of the Revised Administrative Code. To this bond there must be affixed customs stamps to the amount of ₱1.00 and internal revenue stamp of ₱0.50. But if the importation consists of American goods and free entry thereof is claimed under Section 12 of the Philippine Tariff Act of 1909, as amended, provided the value of the consignment is over ₱20.00 and the importer has not received the corresponding bill of lading and/or properly accomplished certificate of origin, he may nevertheless file his import entry accompanied by bond in the penal sum of double the amount of duty assessable on the merchandise were it proceeding from countries other than the United States, guaranteeing the production of such lacking documents; said bond must have affixed thereon customs stamps to the amount of ₱1.00 and internal revenue stamp of ₱0.50.

Every exportation must be covered by export entry. If the value of the export exceeds ₱50.00, there must be affixed on said entry customs stamps to the amount of ₱1.00. If the export is of Philippine products or manufacture and is destined for the United States and the exporter desires to avoid payment of full customs duty in the United States, he must secure certificate of origin covering such Philippine products or manufacture to which document customs stamps to the amount of ₱2.00 and internal revenue stamp of ₱0.20 must be affixed, but if the value of the merchandise does not exceed ₱50.00 only internal revenue stamp to the amount of ₱0.20 is required. Besides said certificate of origin, the exporter must secure export tax certificate and pay the export tax provided in the Tydings-McDuffie Act, as amended, which is 5% during 1941, 10% in 1942, 15% in 1943, etc. of the full amount also

PHILIPPINE PRODUCTS INCLUDED IN THE UNITED STATES FREE LIST AND PRODUCTS SUBJECT TO QUOTA LIMITATIONS

No article shipped from the Philippines to the United States on or after January 1, 1941, subject to an export tax provided for in this section, shall be admitted to entry in the United States until the importer of such article shall present to the United States collector of customs a certificate, signed by a competent authority of the Philippine Government, setting forth the value and quantity of the article and the rate and amount of the exports tax paid, or shall give a bond for the production of such certificate within six months from the date of entry."

Attention is directed to Commonwealth Act No. 511, section 4, which reads as follows:

"The export tax herein imposed shall be assessed and collected by the Bureau of Customs in conformity with such laws and regulations governing the collection of import duties as may be applicable thereto and are not contrary to the provisions of the Act of Congress of March twenty-four, nineteen hundred and thirty-four, as amended, and, subject to this same limitation, under such other rules and regulations as the Insular Collector of Customs, with the approval of the Secretary of Finance, may prescribe. All penal provisions in respect to the collection of import duties, in so far as the same may be applicable and are consistent with the provisions of this Act and of the aforesaid Act of Congress of March twenty-four, nineteen hundred and thirty-four, as amended, are extended and made applicable in respect to the collection of the export taxes imposed herein as well as to violations of the rules and regulations promulgated under the authority of this section. The Insular Collector of Customs or the Collector of Customs at ports of entry shall, for each exportation to the United States on or after January first, nineteen hundred and forty-one, of articles subject to the export tax, issue and sign a certificate setting forth the value and quantity of such articles and the rate and amount of the export tax paid thereon."

BUNKERING, TRUCKING AND STORAGE FACILITIES

The Asiatic Petroleum Co. (P. I.), Ltd. has bunkering facilities for supplying Underboiler Fuel and Diesel Fuel in bulk to ocean-going and interisland vessels at any time of the day subject to 24 hours prior notice. Storage tankage capacity, carries over 30,000 tons.

Three lighters of approximately 230 tons capacity with self-contained pumping units capable of delivering over 100 tons per hour are maintained for this service. In addition, two small lighters are maintained for making deliveries of small quantities between 5 tons and 40 tons.

The Asiatic Petroleum Co. (P. I.), Ltd. also carries adequate supplies of Marine Lubricating Oils for all purposes which can be delivered at 24 hours notice. Lubricating Oils are usually packed in export tanks containing 53 American gallons.

The Standard-Vacuum Oil Company also carry supplies of Bunker Fuel in their tanks at Port Area Terminal, Manila, and have facilities for bunkering vessels while at berth alongside the piers loading or discharging cargo. Vessels anchored in the bay desiring to take Bunker Fuel or Diesel Oil can be served by means of pumping barges.

At Opon, Cebu, the Standard-Vacuum Oil Company can also supply vessels with their requirements of petroleum products.

The trucking facilities in the Port of Manila outside the Customs premises are being operated by private concerns.

FIRST CLASS—letters (hand or typewritten and letter-press copies or manifold copies of either), matter wholly or partly in writing or typewritten, manuscript or typewritten copy when not accompanied by printed proof sheets, and all packages and other matter sealed against inspection. For letters mailed in bulk (not less than 250 pieces) without stamps affixed, a permit is necessary.	2 centavos for each 20 grams or fraction thereof.	No limit of weight. Limit of size, 1 meter 80 centimeters, length and girth combined.	All classs of domestic mail matter should be fully prepaid, but such mail matter inadvertently mailed deficient in postage, will be treated as follows: SENDER KNOWN Short-paid domestic mail matter of all classes will be marked with the amount of the shortage, single rate, and returned to the sender, if known, or if not expedient to return the article itself, the sender will be notified by the card form provided for the purpose.
POSTAL CARDS and PRIVATE MAILING CARDS. — (Post cards.)	2 centavos each.	Size—Same as foreign.
SECOND-CLASS. — Newspapers, periodicals and regular publications entered as second-class matter at post offices in the Philippines or in the United States, addressed to bona fide subscribers, and sample copies not exceeding 10 per cent of the number sent to such subscribers, mailed by the publishers or by news agents duly authorized as such by the Director of Posts.	3 centavos for each kilo or fraction thereof.	No limit of weight. Limit of size, 1 meter 80 centimeters, length and girth combined.	SENDER NOT KNOWN If the sender is unknown and the mail matter is short-paid in an amount less than the postage for one kilogram (1000 grams), at the rate for the class to which the article pertains, the article will be forwarded to the Philippine Post office of destination marked postage due in an amount double the deficiency, which amount will be collected from the addressee by the postmaster at destination.
THIRD-CLASS.—All other mailable matter not included in the above classes. It should bear the name and address of sender on the outside of wrappers preceded by the word "From." For third-class matter mailed in bulk (not less than 250 pieces) without stamps affixed, a permit is necessary.	2 centavos for each 60 grams or fraction thereof for articles not exceeding 600 grams in weight; 12 centavos for each half kilo (500 grams) or fraction thereof on the whole weight for articles exceeding 600 grams in weight.	Weight—20 kilos between most of the important port towns and places on railroads and those supplied by automobiles; 10 or 5 kilos between all others according to the method of transportation used. Size—2 meters and 10 centimeters, length and girth combined.	When an article is short-paid in an amount equal to or more than the postage for one kilogram (1000 grams), at the rate for the class to which the article pertains, the article will be held at the post office of mailing and the addressee requested, by Form 1543, to send the amount of deficient postage, single rate, to the postmaster at the place of mailing. Any short-paid matter which thru inadvertence reaches destination without having been rated at the office of mailing will be rated up with double the deficiency and the deficiency will be collected before delivery. The foregoing only applies to articles which are inadvertently mailed without sufficient postage. if articles are habitually or knowingly mailed with insufficient postage said articles with a full report should be forwarded to the Director of Posts.

CIRCULAR NO. 6

SUBJECT: February 24, 1940

Books consisting wholly of reading matter addressed for delivery in the United States, Special rate of postage on—

Administrative Order No. 4 dated February 14, 1940, provides that effective immediately and until July 1, 1941, books addressed for delivery in the United States or its possessions, consisting wholly of reading matter and containing no advertising matter other than incidental announcements of books, in parcels not exceeding 220 grams in weight (third-class), may be mailed at the postage rate of four centavos per parcel where such rate is less than the regular third-class rate of two centavos for each 55 grams prescribed for books under paragraph (a) of Section 409 of the Manual, as amended.

Books of the same character addressed for delivery in the United States or its possessions, in parcels weighing more than 220 grams but not in excess of 32 kilograms (fourth-class), shall be charged at the rate of four centavos for each 455 grams or fraction thereof.

All such parcels of books shall be indorsed by the senders with the word "Book" or "Books." A book, within the contemplation of this circular, shall be a cloth- or paper-bound volume having 24 or more pages, of which at least 22 are printed, and shall not contain ruled or blank pages intended for records or memoranda purposes. The permissible additions to and enclosures with fourthclass matter as set forth in Section 410 of the Manual shall also be permissible in the case of books mailed under the provisions of this circular. Attention is called to the Unnumbered Circular dated April 25, 1939, which contains lists of articles to which this special rate applies, and those to which it does not apply.

This circular supercedes the penultimate paragraph of Circular No. 32 dated August 16, 1939, which made this special rate applicable only to books not exceeding 220 grams in weight.

Postmasters shall make the necessary notations on their copies of the printed Schedule of Postage Rates and Conditions. They shall likewise refer this circular to their subordinates for the latter's information and guidance, and then file it properly in the post office.

Director of Posts

CIRCULAR NO. 13

SUBJECT: May 27, 1940

Books consisting wholly of reading matter addressed for delivery in the Philippines, Special rate of postage on—

Beginning July 1, 1940, and until June 30, 1941, books addressed for delivery in the Philippines, consisting wholly of reading matter and containing no advertising matter other than incidental announcements of books, shall be charged at the rate of 4 centavos for each ½ kilogram or fraction thereof, in accordance with Administrative Order No. 6 dated March 4, 1940.

A book, within the contemplation of this Circular, shall be a cloth- or paper-bound volume having 24 or more pages, of which at least 22 are printed, and shall not contain ruled or blank pages intended for records or memoranda purposes. The permissible additions to and enclosures with domestic third-class mail matter as provided in existing regulations shall also be permissible in the case of books mailed under the provisions of this Circular. Packages of books intended for mailing at this special rate shall be plainly endorsed by the sender with the word "Books." Such packages shall not be sealed against inspection or contain any matter of the first class (except the permissible additions or enclosures), otherwise they shall be charged at the first-class rate of postage.

Before filing this Circular in their respective offices, postmasters shall refer the same to their subordinates for the latter's information and guidance, and make notation of this special rate on their copies of the printed schedule of postage rates and conditions.

As a general rule, all articles of correspondence must be fully prepaid by the sender. However, ordinary letters may be forwarded to destination with partial prepayment or without prepayment of postage, double the deficiency to be collected on delivery. NOTE:—The minimum amount of deficient postage to be rated and collected is 4 centavos.
POST CARDS.—	6 centavos each for single cards, and for each of the two halves of reply post cards.	Size—Maximum, 15 by 10.5 centimeters. Minimum, 10 by 7 centimeters.	As a general rule, all articles of correspondence must be fully prepaid by the sender. However, single post cards with partial prepayment or without prepayment of postage may be forwarded to destination, double the deficiency to be collected on delivery.
PRINTED MATTER. — Newspapers and periodicals, books, pamphlets, sheet-music, visiting cards, address cards, printing proofs, engravings, photographs and albums containing photographs, pictures, drawings, plans, maps, cut-out patterns, catalogs, prospectuses, advertisements, and printed, engraved, lithographed, or autographed notices of various kinds, and, in general, all impressions or reproductions obtained on paper or other material assimilable to paper, on parchment or on cardboard, by means of printing, engraving, lithography, autography or any other easily recognizable mechanical process, with the exception of the copying press, stamps with movable or immovable type, and the typewriter.	4 centavos for each 50 grams or fraction thereof. Except printed matter for the use of the blind, the rate on which is 2 centavos for each 1000 grams or fraction thereof.	Limit of Weight—2 kilograms, except single books, the limit for which is 3 kilograms. The limit of weight for printed matters for the use of the blind is 5 kilograms. Limit of Size—The same as that for letters.	Full prepayment required.
COMMERCIAL PAPERS—The following are considered as commercial papers, on condition that they do not have the character of actual personal correspondence: all papers and documents, wholly or partly written or drawn; such as out-of-date articles of correspondence (opened letters and post cards) which have already reached their original destination, and copies thereof; papers of legal procedure; documents of all kinds drawn up by ministerial officers; waybills or bills of lading; invoices; certain documents of insurance companies; copies of or extracts from documents under private seal written on stamp or unstamped paper; scores or sheets of music in manuscript; manuscript of works or newspapers sent separately; original and corrected exercises of students but without any notes not relating directly to the execution of the work.	16 centavos for the first 200 grams or less, and 4 centavos for each additional 50 grams or fraction thereof.	Limit of Weight—2 kilograms. Limit of Size—The same as that for letters.	Full prepayment required.
SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Must possess no salable value, nor bear any writing except name and address of sender and addressee, manufacturer's trade mark, prices, and indications relative to weight and dimensions or such as are necessary to determine the origin and nature of the goods.	8 centavos for the first 100 grams or less, and 4 centavos for each additional 50 grams or fraction thereof.	Limit of Weight—500 grams. Limit of Size—The same as that for letters.	Full prepayment required.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS

ONLY PHILIPPINE STAMPS VALID.—Postage stamps of the United States or of foreign countries are not valid for postage in the Philippines but single postal cards, the reply halves of double postal cards, and embossed stamped envelopes of the United States are valid for postage when addressed to the United States, Guam, Tutuila, Virgin Islands, Hawaii, Porto Rico or the Canal Zone. Prepayment of all other postage additional to that on the embossed stamped envelope must be made with Philippine postage stamps.

The reply halves of foreign double postal cards are valid for postage when addressed for delivery in the country which issued it.

Embossed stamped envelopes and postal cards of the United States, the reply halves of foreign double postal cards, when not addressed for delivery in the country which issued them (unless the postage thereon is paid with Philippine postage stamps) and articles found in the mails bearing internal-revenue stamps, or postage stamps of the United States or of any foreign country, will be treated as unpaid matter. The embossed stamped envelopes and 2-centavo postal cards of the Philippines are valid for postage in the United States when directed to addresses in the Philippines.

SPECIAL DELIVERY.—Each piece of mail matter intended for special delivery should have affixed thereto, in addition to the stamps required for payment of postage, a Philippine Special Delivery stamp or ordinary postage stamps to the amount of 20 centavos. If ordinary postage stamps are used for paying special delivery charges the words "Special Delivery" or their equivalent must be plainly written on the address side of the article to be specially delivered. Special delivery mail is no safer than ordinary mail. The extra fee is for quick delivery at destination only.

UNITED STATES SOLDIERS', SAILORS' AND MARINES' LETTERS.—United States soldiers', sailors' and marines' letters, when properly indorsed as such, may be sent to destination in the United States without prepayment of any postage, and only single rate will be collected on delivery.

SPECIAL DELIVERY TO U. S. A.—Philippine special delivery stamp can be used for special delivery service in the United States.

REGISTRATION

General Information

1. The rates shown are for each domestic telegram of not exceeding ten words, address and signature excluded.
2. For each word over ten in a domestic telegram, the charge is one-twentieth of the ten-word zone rate.
3. For radiograms and cablegrams originating at, or destined to, ship stations and points outside of the Philippine Islands, the Bureau of Posts land-line charge for each work including-address and signature is one-tenth of the 10-word zone rates between the two terminal offices of the Bureau of Posts which handle the radiograms or cablegrams. For cable-letters or radioletters of 25 words or less, the charge shall be the ordinary rate for a domestic telegram of ten words; for each additional word, the charge is one-twentieth of the ten-word rate.
4. For rush messages, double the ordinary rates.
5. For code, cipher, and other repeat back messages, an additional charge of 50 per cent is collected.
6. The Bureau of Posts radio station coastal rate on radiograms for or from ship stations is ₱0.16 a word, in addition to the ship's rate of ₱.08 or ₱0.24.
7. The charge for a press message of fifty words or less is equivalent to that for a commercial message of ten words; for each additional five words or fraction thereof, the charge is one-twentieth of the ten-word zone rate. The press rate per words on press radiograms to or from the ships is one-fourth of 16 centavos, plus one-fourth of the ship's rate.

Philippine Money

Philippine Pesos, half pesos, including Treasury certificates are unlimited legal tender in the Philippine Islands unless otherwise specifically provided by contract. The unit of value in the Philippine Islands is the peso—two pesos are equal in value to one dollar in any currency which is legal tender for public and private debts in the United States. Pesos, Philippine Currency, are designated by the following mark, (₱). The Philippine Currency System is that commonly known as the Exchange Standard. The parity is maintained by the sale of drafts in the Philippines by the Government on its Exchange Standard fund in New York and the sale of drafts in New York by the agent of the Philippine Government on the Government's Exchange Standard fund in Manila. The Government's rates of exchange are fixed, and represent as nearly as practicable the cost of shipping U. S. Currency between New York and Manila. The Philippine Government, at its option, exchanges Philippine Currency for United States Currency and vice versa, charging a slight premium sufficient to pay transportation expenses. No charge is made for exchange in U. S. Currency for Philippine Currency in small amounts.

Philippine Silver Certificate while not legal tender, are exchangeable on demand for legal tender coin, are receivable in payment for all Government dues and may be held by banks as part of their legal reserve. United States paper currency though not legal tender is received by whom offered in payment of obligation to the Government.

The following denominations of Philippine Currency are in general circulation:

Philippine Population by Provinces and Municipalities - 1939

Furnished by the Commission of the Census

INTRODUCTION

The information given below is the final and official count of population in each province and municipality according to the census taken as of Census Day, January 1, 1939.

The population given for each province and municipality is the resident population. All persons were enumerated and counted in the municipality in which they usually live. Inmates of hospitals, prisons, convents, and other institutions were enumerated and counted in the municipalities in which such institutions were located. Army trainees were enumerated and counted in most cases in the municipalities in which their homes were located as the enumeration period occurred between the time when one group of army trainees completed training and the succeeding group of trainees reported for training.

All persons (except United States citizens belonging to the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and members of their families) who spent the night preceding Census Day, January 1, 1939, in the Philippines were enumerated and included in the population given in this bulletin.
